Ford, Carter to cap state campaign here

by STEVE BROWN

President Ford and his Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter will wind up their Illinois campaigns with area appearances tonight as their neck-and-neck race for the White House moves into its final week.

Key campaign officials for both sides indicate the appearances by Ford in three suburban locations, including Schaumburg and Carter in Niles Township, will end the candidates' intensive campaigns in Illinois.

Both contenders may stop in the state next weekend as part of a final nationwide swing, but no definite plans have been made.

The candidates also will tape brief television interviews and some specialized campaign material for airing later during their visits to the area.

THE PRESIDENT will speak at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg at about 8:10 p.m. Before his appearance in the area, the President is expected to meet in Chicago with the Cook County Republican Central Committee.

The two candidates running in the 10th Congressional District will get the most direct help from the Presidential contenders. Ford will visit with workers at the Allstate Insurance Co. office in Northbrook along with Republican candidate Samuel H. Young of Glenview.

Carter will speak at 7:30 p.m. at the Niles Township Jewish Congregation, 4500 Dempster St., Skokie with U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th.

The President will be joined by several local politicians who were key figures in former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's effort to win the Republican Presidential nomination.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, and State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, will accompany the President to Woodfield. Crane also is expected to be with Ford at Northbrook.

COMPLETE PLANS for the President's appearance at the shopping center have not been finalized. However, local officials are being invited to view the President's appearance from a special VIP section at the shopping center.

Ford's agenda

President Ford will arrive in the Chicago area today at 11:45 a.m. when his plane arrives at the Air Force Reserve Operations ramp. He then will travel to the Ford City Shopping Center on Chicago's Southwest Side for a 1 p.m. rally and will meet at 2:20 p.m. on behalf of Samuel Young, Republican candidate in the 10th Congressional District, with workers at Allstate Insurance Company's Northbrook office.

The President will appear at the Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg at 8:10 p.m. and will spend the night at the Arlington Park Hilton in Arlington Heights before leaving from O'Hare early Wednesday.

Carter's agenda

Democratic Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter will speak at a noon rally on the Southern Illinois University campus in Carbondale and then will fly to O'Hare Airport. He will address a 7:30 p.m. rally on behalf of U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, at the Niles Township Jewish Congregation, 4500 Dempster St., Skokie. He will spend the night at the O'Hare Hilton at O'Hare Airport befoe leaving the area early Wednesday.

The President's appearance is expected to strengthen support in the heavily Republican Northwest suburban area and offer a forum for a large number of people to see him. The Woodfield appearance will be Ford's second stop at a shopping center today. He also is scheduled to appear at Ford City on Chicago's Southwest Side.

Carter's campaign stop in Niles Township will cap a day which includes speeches in Carbondale and the Quad Cities.

A stop Wednesday morning in DuPage County was scratched from Carter's schedule.

Agents keep low profile during visit

by NANCY GOTLER

The man sat in the lobby trying to look inconspicuous with a clipboard and walkie-talkie partially hidden in the folds of his oversized tweed coat.

He watched people as they moved across the hotel floor and every few minutes got up to make a short call on the house telephone.

To guests and employes, the lone Secret Service agent in the lobby of the Arlington Park Hilton was the only clue that President and Mrs. Gerald R. Ford will be staying there tonight.

BUT 11 FLOORS up there was more evidence of the hectic days of planning that precede a Presidential visit. In one suite, a dozen phones rang while as many press aides and volunteers answered them amid room service trays piled with half-eaten breakfasts.

Wires for 60 phones, being installed for the President and his staff, were strewn down the long hall.

Although Secret Service agents and press aides emphasized the hotel stay will be "low profile," routine investigations of hotel employes and other security checks have been made since Friday.

Ford will land at O'Hare Airport at 11:45 a.m. today and speak at Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg, at 8:10 p.m. Mrs. Ford is scheduled to remain at the hotel while her husband campaigns, May Paris, the First Lady's press secretary, said.

The details of the President's visit have been planned for a week but by late Monday hotel employes still had not been informed of any unusual procedures.

Illinois Issues
How the people view the election

METRO EAST

(ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER) — Craig Hipp knows the waters of the Mississippi River well.

He's seen this river at its best and worst . . . on days when dead fish floated downstream on water slicked with grease and oil . . . on spring days when "it goes nuts" and swells beyond its banks to crawl five feet up the flood wall on the St. Louis side. . . and on the peaceful, sunny days when a warm breeze has the good sense to temper the air without disturbing the tranquility of calm waters.

Others might look in these green, muddied, 30-foot depths and see the reflections of industry and pollution.

Not Hipp.

He's ridden this river for six years and each time he looks at it, he sees a life he wouldn't trade.

"The traffic is picking up on the river," the 30-year-old Hipp will say from the helm of the tugboat Barbara Sue. He sees the change that has come out here in the six years he has worked for the Illini Sand Co. in East St. Louis, working the hydraulic pump that scoops sand from the river bottom onto 500-ton barges.

"A lot of people around here don't know that the Mississippi is one of the largest inland water transportation systems in the United States," he says. "We beat the railroads by far, that's for sure.

"We can haul railroad cars on barges, but they can't haul a barge on a railroad.

"I used to work in a factory, but once you get this in your system, it's hard to go back to a factory," he says.

Not that this compares to factory work. Hipp knows he's better off than a lot of people here.

"I would say unemployment in East St. Louis is the worst in Illinois," he says. "I don't know if it's because of a lack of jobs or a lack of enthusiasm.. People are just getting too many free handouts."

Hipp will tell you how he used to think one voice didn't matter. And he admits that he "didn't vote in the last election" because he really didn't like Richard Nixon, and George McGovern's platform "was just too way out."

But unlike others, Hipp has changed. He'll say that he's come to think that things like voting do matter.

"I look at it this way, you can't let everyone else out there decide things. You have so many conflicting views out there. But even if you're one guy, you might get a group behind you to work for something.

"I like Jimmy Carter. My wife likes Gerald Ford. I like to think that the Democrats are more for the working man, but they can only go so far. Big business is Republican and big business runs the country."

Hipp will tell you he's lucky. Amid the high unemployment here, he has a job he likes and good pay to go with it. "I made about $26,000 last year. Business is down a little this year so I'll probably make about $24,000, but it's good money."

A good salary doesn't make you immune from all economic headaches, though, and sometimes, even for Hipp, the high cost of living "gets to be a hassle."

"I have two families. I take care of my mother and I have a wife and two kids. I'm trying to build a house, too, and that's a hassle.

"We have it pretty good, though. It could be better, but at least we have enough to pay our bills. A lot of people don't."

Chamber has one voice despite inner differences

by NANCY GOTLER

For 30 years the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce has called itself the hub of the business community without which the wheel of trade would stall.

Those who agree staunchly defend the organization as a vital communications link among merchants.

Others say it is run by persons who ignore outlying shopping centers and small-time merchants.

AT STAKE, depending on the acceptance or failure of the chamber, could be the future direction of business in Arlington Heights.

"The principal reason for its existence," said Executive Mgr. Earl W. Johnson, "is that it provides a catalyst or voice for business. We can speak together much more loudly than we can alone.

"Mankind is basically a social animal who tends to bind together," Johnson said.

"If there were no chamber of commerce, the services it provides, like answering dozens of phone calls and letters every day, would be forwarded to the village and that could mean hiring another switchboard operator, which would eat up more tax dollars.

"In a sense, the chamber of commerce is self-serving in that it tries to do all those things that will bring business to the village," Johnson said. "And some people think that the name chamber of commerce is old-fashioned. That could be, but no matter what it's called, I think there will always be an organization of businessmen looking out for their own good."

Not all members agree about the Chamber's merits. Chamber member Chris Jackson, owner of Brown's Fried Chicken, 1005 E. Northwest Hwy., said, "I think in Arlington Heights the chamber is big business oriented. I don't think the little men like myself have much control. It seems to be run by the same people who are running everything else — the banks, real estate agents and larger companies.

"ALTHOUGH THAT is a negative aspect, I'll remain a member as long as there is a chamber of commerce here," he said, 'because on issues where there is a clear stand for businessmen they do represent us."

Tillie Mensching, owner of the Lorraine Anne Shop, 18 W. Campbell St., has a different view.

"I've been a member for 27 years, and I think it does a lot. I disagree with people who say the small businesses don't have a voice," Mrs. Mensching said, "because I'm on the board of directors and I have a small business. As far as I can see, the chamber is for everybody."

Johnson said the chamber does not put too much emphasis on downtown business and said the organization is concerned with the entire village.

"We have as much interest in the success of North Point Shopping Center, for example, as of Arlington Market Shopping Center," he said. "It may seem from time to time that we dote on the central business district, but that's not necessarily true.

"The central business district in any area is where most change is started," Johnson said. "But we're interested in other things, too, like the development of Rand Road, traffic control along Palatine Road and industrial parks."

MOST DOWNTOWN merchants interviewed felt the chamber's interest is evenly distributed across the village, but businessmen in outlying

Pumpkin stand told to shut down

Ruth and Bill Grismer, who have been selling pumpkins in Rolling Meadows for 19 years, were ordered Monday by the city to clear the 25 to 30 tons of pumpkins from their property at Golf and Algonquin roads by Saturday. The order came late Monday when Police Sgt. Andrew Herbert presented a citation to the Grismers ordering them to halt selling pumpkins and giving them five days to remove them from their property. City Atty. Donald Rose says the pumpkin sale violated city zoning and business license ordinances.

Two vans stolen from dealer

Thieves in Arlington Heights stole two vans and stripped the interior of a third van at an auto dealer between 5 p.m. Sunday and 8 a.m. Monday, police reported. Taken from a van parked at Chalet Ford, 801 W. Dundee Rd., and owned by Mario Villarreal, 1593 Cove Dr., were goods valued at more than $782. Police said thieves also took a white 1976 Ford Econoline 150 with a mural of George Washington painted on its side; and a 1976 white-over-red Ford Econoline 150. Value of the vans was reported at more than $6,500 each. Both were taken from the front line of the dealership's truck lot along Dundee Road, police said.

Eppley backs police service swap

A proposed service exchange program between the Mount Prospect and Cook County Sheriff's police departments would be a "very good thing for our village" and should be supported by the village board, Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said. The program, developed by Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney in conjunction with sheriff's police, calls for Mount Prospect officers to be deputized, which would allow them to make arrests in unincorporated areas and outlines other service exchanges between the two agencies. In a letter to Eppley, Doney said that if approved, the exchange program would be the first in the Northwest suburbs.

Lawyer, club cited for violation

A Mount Prospect lawyer running for a Cook County Circuit Court judgeship and the Democratic Club of Schaumburg Township were among 50 political committees Monday cited by the Illinois Election Board for failing to comply with a state law requiring the filing of financial contributions. The reports were due Oct. 18 from all committees raising money for the Nov. 2 election and were to include all financial contributions received between July 1 and Oct. 3. Ruth L. Leffler, running for circuit court judge on the Republican ticket, said Monday she was unaware Oct. 18 was the filing deadline. "I knew about the report due after the election. I'm not a professional politician," Ms. Leffler said. "I don't even believe judges should have to run for election." She said the Committee to Elect Ruth Leffler will file the report today.

Strict county housing code asked

A coaltion of Maine Township residents' groups has proposed that Cook County adopt a housing maintenance code to prevent deterioration of multi-family housing in unincorporated areas. The Golf-Maine Community Federation, which consists of six homeowner and tenant organizations has asked Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne to propose the code to the county board. Patton Feichter, vice president of The Greens Tenants' Assn., a coalition member, said residents want a housing maintenance code adopted because they are concerned over the "general decay" that is occurring in some parts of the unincorporated areas.

Woodfield gears for visit by President Ford tonight

by DANN GIRE

The Great Hall in the midst of Woodfield Shopping Center Monday night was a beehive of activity as carpenters and soundmen made preparations for President Ford's visit at 7:30 p.m. today.

Carpenters were busy building two platforms, one for the Presidential rostrum from which President Ford will speak, and the other for the press.

Workmen were awaiting word on where to install telephones to be used by the President and the legions of reporters accompanying him on the final campaign swing before the Nov. 2 election.

DESPITE THE aura of respect and reverence usually accompanying a Presidential visit, LeRoy Roberts, a carpenter building the platform on which the Presidential rostrum will stand, seemed to be unruffled by Ford's visit.

Constructing a platform for the President is "just like building one for anyone else," says Roberts, a construction manager for Pepper Construction Co. of Barrington.

"That's it," he said, pointing to a large, flat wooden box in the Great Hall. "It doesn't look like much now, but we'll cover it with dark blue short-shag carpeting."

While the platform went up, Secret Service agents took three hours before giving Roberts the go-ahead for construction to begin.

FORD WILL BE speaking from the 18-inch high platform, facing southwest to the press corps platform, and above that, the television camera area.

"It started out to be 8 feet by 8 feet. Then they changed it to 8 feet by 6 feet. Then they finally settled on 8 feet by 10 feet," Roberts said of the President's platform.

The carpenter said Secret Service agents had been all over the shopping center Monday "looking at the designs, checking corridors and making sure their communications radios worked."

Schaumburg police officers took 80 pictures of the Woodfield Mall Friday and Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy said he has studied blueprints of the shopping center to coordinate security.

THE OFFICERS assigned to the scene will be briefed at 5 p.m. at the Schaumburg police headquarters and bused to the mall by 6 p.m., Conroy said.

Two telephone servicemen, waiting in the Great Hall Monday, were to install telephones to be used by the press pool and the President.

How many phones will they have to hook up?

"Millions," one says. "We're still waiting to hear where to put them. They want to keep the President in constant contact with Washington . . . or something like that."

PASSERSBY PAID little attention to the construction and the sound-system installation. For the most part, the Great Hall was rather empty, a sharp contrast to what is expected tonight.

One Woodfield official said he is uncertain how many persons will be in the mall to hear Ford.

"We've had easily 25,000 to 30,000 people in here at one time. That was for John Travolta (of 'Welcome Back, Kotter') and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra," he says.

Besides spectators, press and Secret Service agents, the Great Hall also will house the Hersey High School Band, to be located behind the President on his left side.

Woodfield officials have been very cautious about what they say concerning Ford's visit.

"We really can't say much about it because of the political situation," an official said. "All we can say is that we are honored (to have the President visit the mall.)"

Security profile low for Ford

lect from those. But I don't know what they'll do here," a head cook said.

A press aide said Ford will eat lunch on Air Force One and either send out for dinner and breakfast or order from the room service menu.

When asked how his food will be prepared at the hotel, the aide answered, "Very neatly. But no one tastes it first or anything. He just orders right off the menu."

Selection of the hotel where the President stays is based on the number of rooms available, said Jack LaCovey, staff assistant to Press Sec. Ron Nessen.

"We go where there is room," he said. "We don't go kicking people out of a hotel."

HE SAID 25 rooms will be occupied by Ford and his staff, but a Secret Service agent estimated three floors will be used.

Chief Robert P. Derks of the Arlington Heights Police Dept. said members of his force will assist tonight at the hotel, but refused to say how many officers would handle security there.

Secret Service agents will make a final security sweep of the shopping center before the President's speech.

"We don't anticipate any special problems," LaCovey said. "In fact, most guests at the hotel probably won't even be aware the President is there."

A sure vote for Ford but he's only 10

Douglas Jacobs says he doesn't know what he'll do if he doesn't get to see President Ford tonight.

This is really his first presidential election, and at age 10, the Hoffman Estates youngster has thrown his support solidly behind Ford.

He got interested in the campaign about a month ago when his fifth-grade class at Churchill School in Schaumburg decided to study politics.

THE STUDENTS WERE asked to pick a candidate, and Doug got behind Ford.

"I thought that his issues were a little better," he says.

So he created the official button for the Ford proponents in his class, using a slogan developed by a friend: "Don't be Bored; Vote for Ford."

His mother, Mrs. Walter D. Jacobs, 165 Cooper Rd., sent it to the President, and last Monday there was a letter from the White House in the Jacobs' mailbox.

"DEAR DOUGLAS," the letter started. "Your mother has thoughtfully sent me a letter enclosing a campaign button, which you made. I am especially grateful for your support."

The letter went on for five more sentences before closing, "With best wishes."

Under that, was the magic signature: "Gerald R. Ford."

"I wouldn't have missed the look on his face for anything," Mrs. Jacobs says.

A copy of the letter went on the classroom window. The original will be framed on Doug's bedroom wall.

AND IN THE midst of Doug's new involvement in politics, he saw a headline in Friday's Herald. "President Ford to make Woodfield visit Tuesday." He pushed the paper toward his mother.

"Hey, he's going to be here," Doug told her. "Can we go?"

"We'll see," she replied. "If we have a car, we'll go.'

The thought leaves Doug a little numb.

"It's the President," he says. "It's hard to get to see the President."

Japanese, Allies revisit 'Bridge on the River Kwai'

BRIDGE ON THE RIVER KWAI, Thailand (UPI) — Carrying their jackets and loosening their neckties in the tropical heat, 53 men walked over a steel railroad bridge Monday in a pilgrimage that brought back memories and nightmares of three decades ago.

Eleven of the men, Americans, Britons and Australians, were slave laborers in construction of the famed "Bridge on the River Kwai." The Japanese were their captors.

An estimated 30,000 other Allied troops and 150,000 oriental civilians died of beatings, malnutrition and jungle disease building the bridge and other parts of the Japanese conquerors' Siam-Burma Railway in World War II.

The occasion was the 33rd anniversary of the rail system's completion. The visitors arrived at the bridge — a replacement for the one they built, which was destroyed by Allied bombers the day before the war ended — after a visit to a cemetery containing headstone markers of 6,982 Allied soldiers.

"We want to be the conscience of the Japanese people," said Takashi Nagase, who organized the trip to the Kwai Bridge, 118 miles west of Bangkok.

"I have no ill feelings," said Dennis Roland, 68, of New York City. He weighed 70 pounds when he got out of the Japanese prison camp. Col. Praeuang Simthipongsa, governor of Thai province, told the group their walk across the bridge should signify "the end of war and peace in the world."

Lance Lowe, 57, of Sydney, Australia, said he tried to get "my chaps" to whistle a few bars of the "Col. Bogey March," theme of the 1957 movie "The Bridge On The River Kwai" starring Alec Guinness and William Holden. No one else wanted to whistle. The Japanese didn't know the tune.

"It certainly brings back memories," said Lowe. "But we're trying to wipe out the hatred." Stan Willner of Virginia Beach, Va., did not shake hands with the Japanese.

"I don't know if they were just taking orders or did those things themselves," he said. "I can't shake hands with them. Really, Nagase is the only one who has said he's sorry."

IN A MOST unmilitary fashion, 53 ex-soldiers — former Japanese guards and wartime Allied prisoners — shuffle across the famed Bridge on the River Kwai they helped build 33 years ago.

WORLD WAR II Japanese engineer Kazumi Sasaki looks from cabin of old engine 719 which he drove during the war. He purchased the engine and will donate it to the River Kwai Memorial area.

DC3 crashes in Colombia; 32 killed

A Colombian DC3 airliner crashed in flames Monday just after takeoff from Yopal airport, killing all 32 persons aboard, airline officials said. The officials said all the victims — 27 passengers and five crew members — were Colombians.

The propeller-driven plane of the El Vanad air taxi company was on a domestic flight when it crashed at 6:15 a.m. about 4 miles from the Yopal airport. Wreckage was spread over a radius of about 400 yards. The plane had just stopped at Yopal, about 115 miles east of Bogota, on a flight from Villavicencio to Cucuta, on the Venezuelan frontier.

Soviet police arrest 33 Jews

Police arrested up to 33 Soviet Jews at their homes in Moscow Monday in a roundup apparently timed to quell protests during this week's three-day meeting of the parliament, Jewish sources said. The sweep against the Jews — many of whom are "refuseniks" denied permission to emigrate to Israel — was believed to be the largest since the June 1974 visit of then President Richard M. Nixon, when 50 Jews were detained to head off demonstrations. Police picked up the Jewish protesters at or near their homes, and rounded up one group near the Supreme Soviet, where they had gone to protest the arrest of four other Jews last week.

Mysterious blast in Gulf of Finland

A mysterious explosion or earthquake occurred Monday in a Soviet test area of the Gulf of Finland, the Helsinki University Seismological Department said. Prof. Ilkka Noponen said the tremor was so strong his seismographs could not measure its Richter degree. He said it occurred near the Estonian coast and could have caused slight damage. The Swedish Uppsala Seismological Institute measured it at 4.0 on the open-ended Richter scale. Some residents in the Finnish capital said they felt the tremor. "Explosions have happened there recently but they have never been that strong before," Prof. Markus Baath at Uppsala, said.

Riot squads fire on S. African youths

Riot squads Monday fired on groups of stone-throwing youths who marched on a police station in the black suburb of Gugulethu, killing one teen-ager and wounding several other blacks, police said. The shooting followed flareups of antigovernment demonstrations in Johannesburg's Soweto ghetto, where four blacks were shot down by police at funerals during the past two days. A fifth black shot during disorders in a cemetery died of his wounds Monday. The outbreak of violence, which ended about five weeks of relative calm in South Africa's blacks-only townships, brought the death toll in racial unrest since mid-June to 382.

The nation

Raft survivor withholds sea burial story

A young man who survived 28 days in a life raft on the Pacific said Monday he would not describe the deaths of his two shipmates buried at sea until he had spoken with their families. Bruce Collins, 23, rescued Sunday about 780 miles west of San Francisco after an intense air-sea search, expressed his wishes to Coast Guard officers aboard the Cutter Campbell which was expected to arrive in Frisco Tuesday night. Collins, Walnut Creek, Calif., was reported suffering from malnutrition and dehydration but in excellent condition.

Berkeley may charge motorists admission

Berkeley, Calif. may become the first city in the nation to charge admission. The federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration wants to have Berkeley take a $1 or $2 a day fee from motorists driving on its streets and the City Council is studying the proposal. The money would be used to pay for shuttle buses which would transport people from parking lots at the edge of town to their destinations in the city. According to the government transportation experts who want to try this system, the levy would raise about $2.6 million annually.

Blacks issue demands on Rhodesia

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Black leaders drew up battle plans Monday for the Rhodesia peace conference and gave Britain a series of demands for the talks to choose a multiracial, interim government.

The nationalist leaders, whose often divided factions have pledged their unity in total rejection of the U.S. blueprint for black majority rule, said Rhodesia must release all political prisoners and Britain must pay for the black delegates' expenses to Geneva.

Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who issued a joint statement after talks with Ivor Richard, the British chairman of the conference, refused to say if the demands must be met before they will sit down at the first peace conference session, scheduled for Thursday.

"No questions and no answers," their spokesman said.

Commenting on the issue that has been the principal point of dispute between the black leaders and the white regime, Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith said Monday that whites must control the army and police in an interim government leading to black rule.

In an apparent conciliatory gesture, however, he said he would welcome majority rule before the two-year limit set in the plan he accepted from Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last month.

The Nkomo-Mugabe statement said Richard had agreed to raise the question of political detainees and related matters with Smith.

Richard had said earlier his two-hour talk with the black leaders was "very useful . . . I was encouraged by them."

The demands by Nkomo, leader of one branch of the African National Council, and Mugabe, secretary general of the Zimbabwe African National Union, included:

- Release of all political detainees in Rhodesia, with arrangements for some to attend the conference;
- Rhodesian forces must desist from "acts of genocide."
- A British cabinet member must come to Geneva to chair the conference.
- Representatives from Rhodesia's white government, which broke away from British rule in 1965, must be considered part of the British delegation.
- Britain must pay the expenses of all members of the African delegations.

The leaders of the other nationalist factions, Bishop Abel Muzorewa of the ANC and ZANU President Ndabaningi Sithole, arrived in Geneva Monday and said all the blacks would present a united front at the conference.

Ferry never responded to warning: mate

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The ferryboat George Prince could have avoided a fatal crash with a Norwegain tanker Frosta in the Mississippi River, but it never responded to warning whistles, the first mate of the giant tanker said Monday.

Peder Crasvaer told a Coast Guard inquiry the 120-foot ferryboat appeared to dart slightly off a collision course, then returned to a path directly in line with the bow of the 664-foot tanker.

Asked if the ferry could have avoided the collision if it had switched course when the first warning whistle sounded, Crasvaer replied: "Yes, it could. Absolutely."

The accident occurred Wednesday at a bend in the river about 30 miles north of New Orleans near Destrehan, La. The 22,000-ton Frosta rammed the George Prince broadside in the predawn darkness, capsizing the small craft and tossing cars and passengers into the murky Mississippi like toys.

Divers working around the clock have recovered 57 bodies. Authorities said perhaps as many as 100 died in the disaster. There were only 18 survivors.

Nick Colombo, a veteran river pilot who was at the Frosta's helm at the time of the accident, sat in the front row. He wrang his hands and occasionally tapped his feet on the carpet, watching Crasvaer intently.

Crasvaer said the Frosta signaled the ferry with two whistle blasts, which would indicate a starboard-to-starboard pass. When the Frosta received no response, he said, Colombo tried again.

"As soon as the pilot gave the second two blasts, I thought that the ferry turned a little bit to starboard. It had to be just a little bit. And then she turned and came back across on the bow. Then the pilot gave the (four-blast) danger signals," the Norwegan said thorough an interpreter.

He said the small boat still had an opportunity to avoid the collision by maneuvering after the warning was given, but "the ferry kept on coming and made no changes in course."

Crasvaer, whose testimony concurred with that of ship's master Kjell Slatten was questioned closely by Cmdr. Peter Lauridsen, one of the Coast Guard investigators.

"After the danger signal, did you see any reaction on the ferry?" Lauridsen asked. "No," Crasvaer replied.

Ford talks up his 2-year record

by United Press International

President Ford campaigned in the Pacific Northwest Monday, talking up his record during the past two years, while running mate Robert Dole campaigned in New England making the most of Veterans Day and his own record in World War II.

Democrat Jimmy Carter, ahead in the polls but promising to take nothing for granted, spent a final day relaxing at home in Plains, Ga., before setting out on a final week of campaigning in the big states, winding up in California.

His running mate, Walter Mondale — who Dole said would weaken America — was concentrating on the populous eastern states working to get a big voter turnout next Tuesday.

Ford flew to Seattle after a successful Sunday in Southern California. In a national radio commercial, Ford dwelt on the economy, saying, "I don't believe the American people should be taxed any more."

He said as a result of his administration, "America is back at peace again. There's honor in your White House again. Four million jobs in 17 months and inflation cut in half. Things are getting better."

Ford also said in the broadcast that America will lose the battle against inflation if federal spending "goes up too fast, or if inexperienced hands take over our economic policy."

In Seattle, where aircraft is a major industry, Ford called for a strong defense and announced he directed the Transportation Department to extend federal noise standards to all domestic U.S. commercial aircraft. He said solving the airport noise problem "is an environmental imperative."

Carter issued a statement on the environment from Plains, charging that many federal agencies "which should be serving the public interest are insensitive to environmental concerns and are instead serving narrow special interests."

"Pollution control does not prevent economic progress," he said. "This is a tremendous new industry which can give us many new jobs and a better quality of life at the same time. We must have all three; employment, energy and a decent environment."

Dole, in Presque Isel, Maine, told a Republican gathering the Democrats do not believe in a "strong America."

"Gov. Carter is the nominee of a great party, the Democrat party, the party that gave us George McGovern. Once that party, like our party, believed in a strong America. But no longer."

"Veterans in particular should shudder at the thought of a man like Walter Mondale a heartbeat away from the most powerful job in the free world," said Dole, who lost the use of his right arm and a kidney from World War II wounds.

Mondale reminded a shopping center crowd in Paramus, N.J.: "In 1960, by the thinnest margin, we elected John Kennedy and he wrote some of the finest pages in American history. But in 1968 by one of the barest margins we made a mistake and elected Richard Nixon," he said. The crowd booed the mention of Nixon.

People

Sen. Jackson confuses senators and presidents

• Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., got his senators and presidents mixed up during a campaign rally for Jimmy Carter and Sen. John Tunney. "I am not running for President," Jackson, who unsuccessfully opposed Carter in the early Democratic primaries, told the Los Angeles audience. "I am running to elect Jimmy Carter, and I am running to re-elect John Kennedy." The embarrassed Jackson, standing beside Tunney, D-Calif., on a flat-bed truck, immediately recognized his mistake. He explained, "When I see John Tunney I think of John Kennedy."

• Barbara, the five-ton circus elephant who broke out of her pen six days ago and lumbered about the Central Arkansas hills pursued by police and circus trainers, returned home on her own Monday. As several Carson and Barnes Circus elephant trucks passed through Hollis, a driver looked back and saw Barbara trailing behind. About 20 officers, circus helpers and volunteers came out to catch Barbara, but by the time they arrived she had already walked into one of the parked trucks by herself.

• Rufus Valdez, a full-blooded Ute Indian from Gallup, N.M. captured first place in the Rosamond, Calif. world championship chili cookoff Saturday. Valdez calls his concoction "Indian's Revenge."

• Shere Hite, author of the best-selling study of female sexuality, "The Hite Report" (Macmillan) supported herself by modeling, sometimes in the nude, during the five years the book was in preparation. One nude layout ran in the November 1972 issue of Oui magazine.

Hare Krishnas sue to stay in temple

The Hare Krishna society filed suit Monday in Cook County Circuit Court seeking permission to remain in its temple in north suburban Evanston. The suit charges the city of Evanston violated the sect's First Amendment rights by denying it a permit to remain in the temple, which was a YMCA building. The Evanston City Council voted 13-3 Sept. 13 to deny the International Society for Krishna Consciousness Inc., the special use permit it needs to occupy the temple. The society has been in the building since Oct. 1, 1972.

Aldermen said they voted against the permit because of complaints about frequent chanting and the manufacture and storage of incense in the temple. Uttamasloka, a Krishna spokesman, denied charges that use of the temple had created parking problems. He said an independent research firm found the noise level from the sect's early morning services were no worse than sounds from passing autos and household air conditioners.

Bond set in ex-wife's slaying

Bond was set at $200,000 Monday for Elmer Wood, who is charged in the slaying of his ex-wife, Marille, in her Carpentersville home Saturday. Wood, 55, was arrested Sunday night and is being held in the Kane County Jail. He appeared in Kane County Circuit Court and a preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 24. Mrs. Wood, 51, was found dead Saturday after police received an anonymous telephone call that a robbery and shooting had occurred at her home. Police said it appeared she had been shot to death and they began an immediate search for Wood. Police said many of Woods' belongings were on the back porch of the home and they said Mrs. Wood apparently had told her husband to "clear out."

Charges dropped in girl's death

Murder charges were dropped Monday against a man accused of killing Barbara Thornhill, 17, a high school honors student who was struck by a bullet while she watched television in the living room of her Chicago apartment. Cook County Circuit Court Judge David J. Shields said he found no probable cause to try Willie Jackson, 19, after assistant state's attorney Alan Burnell informed him the only witness against Jackson had changed his story.

Burnell said the 16-year-old witness identified Jackson as the assailant in a statement to police Sept. 18, saying Jackson fired a shot through the picture window of Miss Thornhill's second floor apartment at the Robert Taylor Homes housing project. However, he said the witness since has retracted his statement.

Hot races spark absentee voting

Absentee voting is as heavy in most areas of Illinois as it was before the 1972 presidential election, a UPI spot check showed Monday. "It's very heavy," Champaign County Clerk Dennis Bing said. "A lot heavier than in past years." He said part of the increase might be due to an increase in total registrations and some hot local races. Jefferson County Clerk Frank Wilson at Mount Vernon said his office had handled "about 300 absentees so far this year and I believe that is about normal . . . There seems to be more interest than four years ago." Absentee voting in Effingham County "will not match what it was four years ago," Clerk Lawrence Sur said. Sur said he had between 900 and 1,000 applications in 1972 and has had only about 400 so far this year.

Chicago election officials said absentee ballot requests are about 10 per cent behind those of 1972, but should increase in the coming week. Several officials said even if absentee voting so far were running behind last year's, it would not necessarily be an indication of voter apathy.

'Outlaws' freed after shooting

Eight reputed members of the Joliet "Outlaws" motorcycle gang were released without being charged Monday after being held overnight in the Peoria County jail in the shooting death of an 18-year-old Peoria youth. A spokesman for the Peoria police said the gang members were released because "we don't know who is responsible for what act. Rather than confine someone who has no guilt, we released them all." The eight were held in the death of Marshall Johnson, who was shot with a .38 caliber gun early Sunday morning after his car broke down. The police spokesman said Johnson suffered a slash in his hand, was shot in the chest, apparently tried to get away and then was shot in the head.

Student burned during lecture

A Southern Illinois University-Carbondale sophomore was hospitalized in stable condition Monday with first-and second-degree burns after a demonstrated speech on fire safety backfired. A university spokesman identified the student as John P. Carey, 19, Seatonville. Carey was taken to the Student Health Service with burns on the abdomen and upper right leg.

SIU security police said Carey apparently had doused some gasoline on his clothing from a jar and then lighted it planning to have a friend quickly douse the flames with a wet sheet. It was not known what happened to the assistant. Carey started toward a window to pull down drapes to smother the flames and other students tried to assist him before someone from outside the classroom came in with a fire extinguisher and put out the flames.

Mail overcharge hearing asked

Celia Maloney, Gov. Daniel Walker's consumer advocate, called Monday for the U.S. Senate to conduct hearings on her charges that Illinois post offices are overcharging consumers. Mrs. Maloney said in a recent survey of 42 post offices in the six-county Chicago area and 30 downstate post offices, she found weighing procedures or charges wrong more than half of the time on three letters and three parcels she presented for handling. "There is no evidence of deliberate fraud," Mrs. Maloney said, "But whatever the reason, it's the consumer who pays. It may well be a problem throughout the country," she said.

Howlett would push disclosure

Democrat Michael J. Howlett Monday said if he becomes governor he would require economic disclosure by key state officials, but wouldn't make his executive order as broad as Gov. Daniel Walker's. Without saying exactly what his economic disclosure order would say, Howlett said he thinks Walker's version is too broad. It requires all state employes under his control to file reports if they make $20,000 or more a year. Howlett did say high-level state workers should continue disclosing their financial records and promised to put "teeth" into any order on the subject. He also said he would scrap Walker's executive order on collective bargaining and instead would support a law giving public employes the right to pick a collective bargaining representative.

Thompson uses elevator delay to sway voters

by ROBERT MACKAY

CICERO, Ill. (UPI) — Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson got stuck in an elevator with 15 other persons while campaigning Monday, but he said he used the time to sway seven voters his way.

Thompson, embarking on a tour of the Western Electric Hawthorne Works plant in the western Chicago suburb of Cicero, entered an elevator with members of his staff, the press, a television film crew and plant employes. He headed for the sixth floor.

The car stalled between the fifth and sixth floors for about 15 minutes and when Thompson exited, he jokingly said, "The vote was 8-7 when we went in, but now it's 15 to nothing."

THOMPSON REMAINED calm during the mishap while two mechanics attempted to fix the elevator.

"Listen, my hands are getting a rest, it's all right with me," he said, noting he had spent the previous two hours shaking hands.

One reporter already on the sixth floor managed to slip a piece of paper into the stalled elevator which read: "Is Jim still alive" A few minutes later the paper came back through a crack in the door and it said, "Am I still 30 points ahead?" A recent poll showed Thompson 30 percentage points ahead of Democrat Michael Howlett.

Bob Jerich, a Western Electric public relations spokesman, said, "It's the first time we ever had anybody stuck in the elevator, and boy, did we pick the time."

Thompson later thanked the two mechanics "for rescuing the Thompson campaign" and said, "I was running out of my funny stories and all I had left was my Baptist sermon."

EARLIER IN the day, Thompson shook hands with commuters at the Jefferson Park elevated stop on Chicago's Northwest Side. Most commuters greeted Thompson warmly and many stopped to talk with him and express their support.

One elderly woman told him, "Someday you're going to be president."

Asked about the comment later, Thompson said, "You can't be president or anything else unless you do a good job first. It's the system that moves you along, not your own ambitions. I'm only a candidate for governor because I was a good U.S. attorney."

Asked what will happen if the system moves him toward Washington, he replied, "That's the American way."

Chamber: something for everyone

"I THINK EVERYONE should be in it (the chamber) because through it you can voice your opinions," said Walter Aronson, owner of Arlington Cake Box, 15 W. Campbell St.

areas, many of whom don't belong to the chamber, said they felt "slighted."

"We have not really benefitted by anything the chamber has done," said Cathy Venti, president of the North Point Merchants Assn., "but we're not going to stand up on a band box and get very upset about it. We promote our own stores through our own association."

Others, like Ronald W. McWherter, owner of the Ben Franklin store, 9 W. Campbell St., said the chamber is necessary, but only as a communications channel, not a business aid.

"Belonging is more or less something that's just been done over the years," he said. "In general, the chamber hasn't helped us as much as getting together ourselves as a downtown merchants association. Still, there is a need for it, as a communication link to the national chamber of commerce."

Johnson said merchants' reasons for not joining are "legion," but include an inability to pay the minimum $85 annual dues.

THE DUES SCHEDULE is based on the type of business and the number of employes, he said, but $1,000 is the maximum assessed any firm.

One downtown businessman, who asked to remain anonymous, said he felt his money could better be spent buying advertising space than paying for dues.

Others, however, have belonged for decades and wouldn't consider quitting.

"I've been a member since 1948," said Walter Aronson, owner of the Arlington Cake Box, 15 W. Campbell St. "I think everyone should be in it because through it you can voice your opinions to somebody who has connections in village government. I think it's an effective organization and not just for the central business district."

"BELONGING IS more or less something that's just been done over the years," said Ronald W. McWherter, owner of Ben Franklin Store, 9 W. Campbell St.

Lot sale hinges on sewer reroute

Arlington Heights will have to spend about $140,000 to reroute a sewer before it can sell the parking lot between Vail and Dunton avenues where village planners hope a shopping plaza-office building will be built by a private developer.

The combined sewer line in the central business district now goes through the middle of the blocks between Vail Avenue and Arlington Heights Road, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said.

"That sewer will have to be taken out of there if we're going to build a multi-story building," Hanson said. It should be relocated along Vail and Sigwalt streets, he said.

The village must bear the cost because developers will be less likely to buy the parking lot site for the shopping plaza-office building if the cost of relocating the sewer is added to the purchase price of the land, which has been estimated at $260,000, Hanson said.

"If you add $140,000 to $260,000 for the developer, you haven't got a project," he said.

Village Trustee Frank Palmatier suggested at a public hearing Monday night that the village consider financing the sewer relocation with community development funds, if the village board decides to apply for the $295,000 federal grant available through the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

Area Baptist clergy doubt Carter

by PAUL GORES

The Republicans have accused Jimmy Carter of trying to be all things to all people, but he surely is not every Baptist's idea of a Baptist.

Baptist clergymen from the Northwest suburbs Monday expressed everything from "great confidence in the man" to doubts about Carter's interpretation of the Bible. None of the area clergymen said they would formally endorse or criticize the religious beliefs of Carter or President Ford to their congregations.

But the Rev. James R. Hines, pastor of Brentwood Baptist Church, 609 W. Dempster St., Des Plaines, admitted, "We've made some comments about Mr. Carter."

"WE'VE MADE IT plain that we don't think he's quite the 'born-again' Christian he claims to be," Hines said. "We certainly don't endorse him by any means."

One Northwest suburban Baptist pastor said he has made available at his church literature that "exposes Carter's beliefs."

"It gives us an idea of what Carter stands for in his religious beliefs," the Rev. Charlie Shoemaker, pastor of Northwest Temple Baptist Church, 303 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights, said of the literature. Shoemaker said he thinks Carter's interview with Playboy magazine "was a poor thing to do" but added that "he would like to see the presidency judged on the issues."

Carter, a Southern Baptist, tried to explain in the interview Jesus Christ's teachings on the sins of lust and pride. The interview drew unfavorable reaction from many religious leaders and even led some to endorse Ford to their congregations.

The Rev. W. Guy Webb, a native of Atlanta, Ga., was the only clergyman to go on record as supporting either major candidate.

"I've supported Jimmy Carter since he was 'Jimmy Who,'" he said. "I have great confidence in the man."

Webb, added, however, that he has not endorsed Carter from the pulpit and has encouraged members of Palatine Baptist Church, 1023 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, to vote on issues, not religious affiliations.

BAPTIST CLERGYMEN in the Northwest suburbs said they have tried to appear neutral to their congregations throughout the campaign.

"I did sort of preach a political pep talk before the nominating conventions," said the Rev. Leland G. Suderland, pastor of Cumberland Baptist Church, 1500 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. "At that point I called attention to the spiritual dimensions of the campaign."

Suderland said he had done "quite a bit of research on Ford's, Carter's and Reagan's religious backgrounds." But he said the sermon fell short of endorsing one of the candidates.

Webb said, as several of the clergymen did, that the publicity given to the two "born-again" candidates for president gave him many opportunities to explain his religion to persons who never cared to know before.

THE REV. Harold I. Albert, pastor of Arlington Heights First Baptist Church, 1211 W. Campbell St., said he still is undecided about who to vote for and wouldn't make a recommendation to his congregation.

"I find this a hard election," Albert said. "I'm not greatly excited about either candidate. I don't feel either is going to be the saviour of the country."

Albert said each family in the congregation gets a subscription to "The Baptist Bulletin." He said one issue evaluated the presidential candidates, including minor party candidates.

"I just get disgusted with the whole thing," the Rev. Schuyler V. Butler of Elk Grove Baptist Church, 801 Bisner Rd., said of the publicity given to the candidates' religious beliefs.

"I think you've (the press distorted this thing and made a mess out of it," he said.

THE PASTOR OF Twin Grove Baptist Church, 770 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Buffalo Grove, the Rev. Arthur Garling, said that historically, Baptists always have supported the separation of church and state.

Garling said he felt "good and positive" about having two Christian candidates. But he said that is not the reason to vote for a candidate.

"If I had a broken leg," Garling said, "I'd rather go to an atheist who was an M.D. than a born-again Christian without any medical background."

Dry meals become easier to swallow

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

Patrons of two Mount Prospect restaurants must speak up if they want glasses of water served with their meals.

The Randhurst Corned Beef Center and Randee's snack shop, both in the Randhurst Shopping Center, have decided to lead the way in a villagewide water conservation campaign expected to net an estimated annual savings of 1.6 million gallons.

Twenty-eight other restaurants in the village have said they soon will join the bandwagon by serving water to their customers by request only. The program is the first of its kind in the Northwest suburbs and possibly in the Chicago area. And most village restaurateurs as well as many of their customers believe other communities where water is becoming a rare commodity should follow in Mount Prospect's footsteps.

PAUL E. COHN, manager of the Corned Beef Center, stopped serving water regularly to his customers about 2½ weeks ago. "It's a great idea," Cohn said. "There is not only a savings in drinking the water, but water is saved in the amount of ice needed and the water used to wash and rinse the glasses. There also is a savings in electricity."

Cohn's waitresses, sporting homemade badges declaring "Water Shortage," are enthusiastic about the conservation campaign. At first, they said customers felt neglected when they weren't served water with their meals. After a brief explanation, though, the patrons have become more sympathetic to the pending crisis. "There has to be education as far as being successful in conserving water," Cohn said.

"They're more aware," said waitress Carol Fritch of Prospect Heights. "Even if the people do not live in the area, it will rub off on them that we take it for granted, that we take advantage of water."

WAITRESS MARGIE Zander admitted it was difficult for her to alter her daily routine. "It was hard for us to change — to not go for the water glasses," she said. Ms. Zander added it is nice to see that some customers thirsting for water are asking for only "half glasses."

Robert Splan, manager of Randee's, said serving water to all his customers "is wasteful because the majority of the people don't drink it anyway." Splan is the leader of Mount Prospect's pack of restaurateurs in water conservation. Randee's has not served water to its customers on a regular basis for several months.

"The conservation program is a good idea," Splan said. "In dishwashing we are wasting water as well as the energy it takes to heat it," he added.

"Other villages should do it," said Splan's wife, Annice, a waitress-hostess at the snak shop. "I don't think people realize how much water they waste. It's something they take for granted, They've always had it."

The water conservation drive was coordinated by the village department of health services at the request of Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. after he saw a similar program at work in Monterey, Calif., earlier this year. Mount Prospect officials have said the village's wells could run dry by 1980.

WAITRESSES AND restaurateurs, however, are not the only ones who have something to say about the new water-on-request concept. In fact, those who are most affected by the procedure are the restaurant customers.

"If I want it I would like to be able to ask for it. It's no bother," said M. Cerny of Des Plaines. "We can get used to doing without it, though. Many times I've wasted it sitting in a restaurant. The whole country should (save)," she added.

"It was surprising when they first started it because we're so used to it (water)," said Tedd Podolsky, a Randhurst merchant from Oak Park. "Probably more than half the people (in restaurants) don't drink it anyway. I'm not bothered by having to ask for water."

"I DON'T THINK people believe there is a shortage," said John Lamantia of Arlington Heights. "Something like this should help. But it would be more effective if all of the suburban communities did it at once."

Some customers said they drink water in restaurants for health reasons. Others said they like to wash down dinner with a glass of water. Still others said they do not miss it with their meals at all.

One enthusiastic restaurant customer said Mount Prospect's water conservation campaign should set an example for other communities. "I think all restaurants should do it," said Cindie Hall of Rolling Meadows. "They should do it all over the world."

44 disciplined in loafing scandal

3 highway supervisors fired

Forty-four employes of the Cook County Highway Dept. were disciplined and three top supervisors fired Monday by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne in response to allegations of loafing by county highway maintenance crews.

Dunne said three top supervisors of the maintenance department have been fired. Two others will appear before the county Civil Service Commission to face dismissal and the other 42 employes have received suspensions ranging from 5 to 29 days.

Dunne said he hopes the action will solve the problem in the highway department, but said he could not guarantee problems would not recur "because of human nature."

He said the loafing by employes was the result of poor supervision.

"The supervisors let us down. I understand that a spirit of camaraderie entered into the situation and that's human nature," he said.

The charges that county highway crews were doing as little as two hours of work a day and were spending most of their time in coffee shops or shopping were made public earlier this month by the Better Government Assn. following a three-month investigation.

FOLLOWING THE BGA disclosures, Dunne ordered his own investigation of the charges. Last week, County Highway Supt. Hugo Stark resigned because of ill health in an action Dunne said was unrelated to the investigation.

William Recktenwald, the BGA investigator in charge of the highway department investigation, Monday said Dunne's action "is almost a replay of what happened five years ago" after a BGA investigation revealed highway department loafing.

"Five years ago the head of the highway department resigned for ill health and it happened this time. After that there was disciplinary action taken," Recktenwald said.

Recktenwald said Dunne's action "punishes those who got caught," but does not solve the basic problem that the highway department is overstaffed and employes do not have enough work to do.

"We are pleased that he (Dunne) has admitted our findings are true, but the crux of the problem is that there are too many people on the payroll," he said.

THE THREE supervisors ordered fired by Dunne were Thomas Link and Thomas McHugh, highway department engineers, and Thomas Flahaven, the road maintenance supervisor stationed in Blue Island.

Facing dismissal by the Civil Service Commission are Henry Riedl, head of the maintenance department in LaGrange Park and Michael Philbin, district engineer at the Des Plaines highway department garage.

Dunne said both Philbin and Flahaven were disciplined during the last highway department loafing scandal.

Student boycott protests busing

Dynamite found at Boston school

POLICE SEIZE a student near South Boston High School as gangs of students who participated in an antibusing boycott Monday engaged in running battles with police.

by WARREN TALBOT

BOSTON (UPI) — A halfpound stick of dynamite which failed to go off was found on the front steps of Charlestown High School Monday and six unexploded molotov cocktails were found in an empty South Boston High School classroom.

The molotov cocktails were thrown through a rear window of the school, landing on the floor of a home economics classroom. A police spokesman said three "burned out" railroad flares also were found in the classroom.

The nine-inch stick of dynamite placed on the top step of the front entrance was removed by the Boston Police Dept. bomb squad after "a pedestrian saw it sputtering" about 12:10 a.m. "It would have caused enough damage if it were capable of going off," said State Police Col. John O'Donovan, whose Bureau of Investigative Services was analyzing the explosive.

POLICE SPOKESMAN Al Nupus said the beer and brandy bottle molotov cocktails were thrown into the building overnight and were discovered by police at about 7 a.m. before the scheduled start of classes.

"In the classroom they found three 12-ounce bottles and three quart bottles filled with liquid and with wicks attached to them," Nupus said. "Luckily they did nothing more than scorch the floor," said school department spokesman Thomas Loftus.

Police Monday arrested at least 17 persons in South Boston. Among those arrested were James Kelley, head of the antischoolbusing South Boston Information Center.

About 100 youths and adults roamed the streets near South Boston High, where a nearly 100 per cent white student boycott was in effect. Police reported several officers and cruisers were stoned.

163 enter Junior Miss competition

One hundred sixty-three Northwest suburban high school senior girls have entered the 12th annual Paddock Publications Junior Miss Pageant.

Two Paddock Junior Misses will be crowned at the Dec. 5 pageant at the Prospect High School theater, 801 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, when scholarships totaling $1,700 will be awarded.

The pageant is affiliated with the Illinois Junior Miss Pageant and America's Junior Miss Pageant planned for May in Mobile, Ala., which will involve winners from all 50 states.

Police query suspects in wake of Bronx fire

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scores of suspects were questioned Monday by police trying to find a firebomber responsible for 25 deaths in a Bronx social club, but officials admitted they don't have a prime suspect.

The interrogation of survivors of the fire and relatives of the dead began even before the city Medical Examiner's office had positive identifications of all the victims.

Detectives said they would visit the 16 persons hospitalized with burns and broken bones suffered when the raging fire forced them to jump for their lives from a second story window to the street below.

In addition, police and detectives of the Bronx District Attorney's office planned interviews with dozens of residents in the Bronx neighborhood who watched as firefighters, after extinguishing the blaze, lowered the bodies of the victims in pine boxes in the early morning hours Sunday.

"ALL OF THE SURVIVORS have to be interviewed, we have to talk to all of the relatives of those who were killed in the fire," the spokesman for D. A. Mario Merola said.

"We have to look into the background of the social club to determine if anyone might have had a reason for burning it down. And, of course, we can't discount the possibility that the person who did it was just a plain nut."

Authorities appeared Monday to be playing down the possibility the fire was caused by an unidentified man ejected from the club after a dance-floor squabble with his wife.

"He, along with everyone else, is a suspect," Merola's spokesman said. "But he is no more of a suspect than anyone else. Everyone keeps trying to push the investigation in his direction, but there are literally scores of interviews that have to be conducted and dozens of possibilities explored."

Weekend colleges gain popularity

by JOHN N. FRANK

Leanne Myer of Palatine wanted to earn a college degree, but as a mother of six did not have time for daily classes.

Felice Avila needed undergraduate credits before beginning work on a master's degree, but her full-time job and responsibilities as a mother left her little time for class.

Now both womtn are going to college without disrupting their heavy schedules because of a new concept in higher education which is taking hold in the Chicago area.

HARPER COLLEGE in Palatine and Mundelein College in Chicago have begun weekend colleges which allow persons to earn degrees by attending classes on the weekend.

The idea for such a program started at Harper when administrators realized there "seemed to be some trends that the typical schedule was not fitting the lifestyle of the people that were coming to our college," said Frank A. Christensen, director of developmental education.

Christensen last December formulated a plan for a weekend college at Harper and the program began this fall, offering 103 classes Friday night and Saturday. More than 2,200 people have enrolled.

The major difference between weekend courses and a weekend college is the ability to earn a degree by taking courses offered during weekends, said Tina Stretch, ssociate director of Mundelein's weekend college.

Students in Mundelein's program can earn bachelor's degrees in business management, humanities, social and behavioral sciences and English communication in the same amount of time as a weekday student, Ms. Stretch said.

AT HARPER, students can earn associate degrees in business administration, supervisory management and liberal arts, said Charles F. Falk, dean of continuing education.

"We're tapping that clientele that always had a need to go to college," said Wence Cunningham, director of Harper's weekend college. "These are people trying to find ways to get out of that old pattern of existence."

It's given Mrs. Avila the opportunity to complete her undergraduate requirements while leaving her evenings free to spend with her two children, she said.

"If you come Saturday morning it still gives you Saturday afternoon to do your weekend thing," said June Nissley of Schaumburg, another student in Harper's program.

Mrs. Nissley says it was impossible for her to take night courses at Harper because of family responsibilities. She said she enjoys her weekend classes because she feels more alert Saturdays than after a full day's work during the week.

MRS. MYER SPENDS five weekends of each Mundelein trimester taking advantage of the live-in feature of the program there, she said. For a $50 fee, students in Mundelein's program can spend five Saturday nights in a dorm on the college's Chicago lakefront campus.

"It has fitted beautifully into my schedule," said Mrs. Myer who hopes to have her degree by June 1978.

Weekend students can spend four hours Friday night and eight hours Saturday sitting in classes, but the long classes don't seem to bother them.

MUNDELEIN'S STUDENTS are primarily women, with five women for each man, but Harper is attracting both women and men who want a degree for personal fulfillment or job advancement, administrators said.

Although the weekend college concept is relatively new, with less than a dozen colleges across the nation having similar programs, it has been so successful in this area that expansion of the program is already being studied at Harper.

Expansion might include the addition of Sunday classes and the development of a "family college," Christensen said. The family college would offer courses a family could take together, such as one concerning parent-teenager relationships or different courses meeting at the same time so families could attend the college more conveniently.

Christensen said the weekend college is another attempt to tailor education to the "new learners" who Harper predicts will return to school in increasing numbers. These are persons whose primary occupation is not being a student, but rather raising a family, earning a living and going to school on the side.

Do you know about the home heating system that pulls energy out of thin air?

Introducing the heat pump.

Scientists have known for centuries that the air around us is a storehouse of heat energy. But it's only been in recent years that they were able to develop an efficient way to tap that abundant resource—the heat pump. Today, it is the only commercially available heating system that provides an answer to shrinking supplies of other fuels.

How the heat pump works:
Basically, the heat pump moves heat from one place to another. It uses electricity to extract heat from a limitless source—the heat in outdoor air. During winter, enough heat remains in the air—even on the coldest and cloudiest days—to be extracted by the pump and transferred indoors as clean, flameless heat. And during warm weather, the process automatically reverses, removing excess indoor heat and humidity like an air conditioner.

Better efficiency.
In short, the heat pump does the job of both a furnace and an air conditioner. But there's an important difference. In northern Illinois the heat pump can produce more than 1½ units of heat energy for every unit it consumes. That's better efficiency than any other current heating system. That could mean significant long-term savings on heating costs.

To get the full advantages of the heat pump, it's important to get a quality product, properly installed and reliably serviced. For the name of qualified installers in your area, call G. W. Berkheimer Co. (Westinghouse Distributors), 312-374-4411; General Electric Co., 312-496-6356; Lennox Industries, Inc., 312-593-2820; or Temperature Equipment Corp. (Carrier Distributors), 312-681-6220. If you want additional heat pump information, call your local Commonwealth Edison office and talk to one of our marketing engineers.

Endorsements of area legislators

Members of the Illinois General Assembly offer perhaps the most direct pipeline for local citizens to their state government, and it is important they be chosen carefully.

In selecting candidates to endorse for the House and Senate races from the legislative districts representing the Northwest suburbs, we have considered each candidate's experience, knowledge of the legislative process, understanding of the issues, honesty and intelligence.

Since no single candidate is perfect in all these respects, The Herald's endorsements reflect a varying mixture of the necessary qualities for good representatives. In some cases, experience is an overriding factor in a candidate's favor, while in others, we have chosen the less experienced candidate on the basis of other qualities.

In Illinois House races, voters have the choice of casting three votes for one candidate, 1½ votes for each of two candidates or one vote each for three candidates. Using the punch-card Votamatic system, the votes will be distributed automatically. One punch will count three times, two, 1½ times each and three will be counted one each. In the Senate, only one member will be chosen for each district.

First District

HOUSE: The two incumbents in this district offer the clearest choices for voters. STATE REP. JOHN EDWARD PORTER, R-Evanston, and STATE REP. HAROLD KATZ, D-Glencoe, are competent and intelligent lawmakers and should be retained.

Two newcomers, Democrat Joseph Rossberger Jr. and Republican Roger Keats are running to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of State Rep. Brian Duff. Of the two, Rossberger appears to be better qualified.

SENATE: No election.

Second District

SENATE: STATE SEN. JOHN GRAHAM, R-Barrington, is a leader of the Illinois General Assembly and brings to his district the benefits that only a legislator with years of service can provide. He is clearly superior to his Democratic opponent and deserves reelection.

HOUSE: STATE REP. RICHARD MUGALIAN, D-Palatine, and Republican newcomer ROGER STANLEY are outstanding candidates running in this district. Mugalian has long been an independent voice in the General Assembly and is an asset to the people of the Second District. Stanley, a moderate Republican, will provide a competent voice for the district in the House.

State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin, remains proud of the fact he has perfect attendance in the House and has sponsored no major legislation. Friedland, however, is better qualified that, Democrat William Sarto, who has not shown a necessary understanding of the issues.

Third District

SENATE: Voters face a difficult choice in this race. State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has the experience and legislative expertise, but he has also shown a degree of silliness in order to score points. Most noteworthy in this regard was his proposal earlier this year to give cash "bounties" to welfare recipients if they would leave the state.

Democrat Michael Smith has based much of his campaign on his activity in Elk Grove Village during the controversy surrounding furnace installations in the village. While Smith is certainly dedicated and concerned about his cause, we think Regner is preferable.

HOUSE: Two outstanding incumbents are running for reelection in this district: STATE REP. EUGENIA CHAPMAN, D-Arlington Heights, and STATE REP. VIRGINIA MACDONALD, R-Arlington Heights.

For Democrats, it is crucial to ensure the reelection of Chapman, who faces a challenge from Democrat Joan Brennan. Brennan is running with the backing of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley; Chapman, on the other hand, is a strong, forceful legislator who is an important voice in the House.

Democrats should consider "bulleting in this race, casting three votes for Chapman.

Macdonald is also a well-qualified, independent-minded legislator who is an asset to the district. Republican voters should consider the possibility of bulleting for Macdonald or dividing their three votes between her and Chapman.

State Rep. DONALD TOTTEN, R-Schaumburg, is too doctrinaire but is a better choice than Brennan.

Fourth District

HOUSE: STATE REP. AARON JAFFE, D-Skokie, and STATE REP. EUGENE SCHLICKMAN, R-Arlington Heights, are two high quality legislators who deserve the support of Fourth District voters. Both are independent and intelligent in their approach to law-making.

Republican Penny Pullen is clearly the better qualified of the two newcomers running in this district, but her positions in opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion preclude an endorsement.

Fifth District

SENATE: Democrat TOM PAUL will bring a long-needed voice from the northern end of the district and we support him in his bid for election. The Des Plaines resident will bring an independent viewpoint and will aid in the passage of important legislation such as the Equal Rights Amendment, legislative ethics, handgun control and the streamlining of state government.

HOUSE: We recommend voters cast all three of their votes for STATE REP. TED LEVERENZ, D-Maywood, a hard-working legislator who has built a credible record during his first term.

Two of his opponents, State Rep. Jack B. Williams, Franklin Park, and State Rep. Edward E. Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, have provided little representation for the Des Plaines portion of the district, focusing on the problems that face their home towns, where, coincidentally, they are also mayors. The fourth candidate, Robert Guerine, lacks an understanding of government in Illinois and should gain some experience on the local level before seeking a House seat.

32nd District

HOUSE: In the race for state representative in Lake County's 32nd District, The Herald endorses Republican BETTY LOU REED and Democrat DANIEL PIERCE.

Three representatives will be chosen from the four candidates, and voters may cast their three votes for either one, two or three candidates.

Rep. Reed, seeking her second term, has been highly visible in the district, helping communities in dealing with state agencies.

Pierce is running for his seventh term, and his solid record in office is good reason to reelect him.

We have no recommendation for the third seat.

SENATE: The Herald makes no recommendation in the race for state senate in the 32nd District.

The race pits Republican Sen. Karl Berning against Democrat Mary Virginia Kerr.

Berning has served for 10 years as the 32nd District senator, and he has a record of voting against tax increases and spending programs.

Mary Virginia Kerr lists women's rights and educational issues as her prime concern, and attacks Berning's record on those two issues.

Berning is experienced, and his tough fiscal stance could prove valuable in dealing with the state's current money problems. But his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment and his lack of visibility in the district leave us with reservations.

Mrs. Kerr is strong on women's rights and educational matters, but she doesn't seem to have the background or knowledge needed on some other state issues.

Milisha Gibson death march makes readers ask why, what can be done?

I am very upset after reading about the death of the little girl, Milisha Gibson, (Oct. 15 article), as a result of being tortured by her parents. We can't even say that people who do such things to others are animals, because no animal, other than human, does this kind of thing to his offspring!

The people responsible for okaying her return to those parents after she was rescued from them in 1973 (as a result of earlier abuse, for which the parents served a one-year imprisonment) also have blood on their hands! They should be tried for murder also, as accomplices, for they set the stage for it. However, I know that this would never be done.

At the very least, these lawyers and judges, etc. should be forced to see Melisha's body! I hope that they will have many nightmares now because of the part they played.

How many Johnny Lindquists does the society need to see murdered by their parents before judges stop thinking that one who gives birth to a child automatically has the right to continue to raise it regardless of the circumstances involved?

It is reading stories like this one that make me believe in the right of a woman to have an abortion at will. It is better for a fetus to be destroyed in early stages before it knows what life is than to be born to parents that neglect, abuse, torture and/or murder it!

Like most people when some incident bothers me or I feel an injustice has been committed either to me or someone else, I may get upset or curse or choose some other ineffectual action like these, but most of the time I shrug it off and forget it. None of these actions were enough this time. I decided other measures must be taken by me. I read your article on Oct. 15 about Melisha Morgana Gibson, age 4. My daughter who is three happened to have been sitting on my lap at the time I read the article. I couldn't believe what I had read so I read it again.

I felt like exploding. Never have I experienced more hate and anger within me than at that moment, directed both at the people who committed their monstrous act and at myself for allowing something like this to occur and not doing anything about it.

Later that evening as I sat alone I again read the article, only this time it was not with dry eyes that I finished it. I didn't know exactly what I had to do but I had to take some action to let people know how I feel. I am not done yet and I still do not know what I will do, but I am going to find out.

If anyone else feels as I do, please call me so we can talk and between us perhaps we can start something.

Fund drive gets deadline, needs help

Since A & P is taking over the National Food Stores in our area, we only have until the end of this year to reach our goal for Dixon State School. The intensely retarded can get so much joy at their services and musical programs by merely ringing "bells on ribbons" or shaking tambourines. We hope to buy these and other simple music makers, with the money, so every tape is vitally needed. Please mail them to me. up until the first of January.

Soft water a luxury to this writer

Watering your lawn is a luxury, and it seems fair for the village to control it in order to conserve water. Wasted drinking water in a restaurant could also be considered a luxury. I think soft water should be considered a luxury. A typical water softener might use 70 gallons a week for regeneration (Washing the minerals down the drain). That's 3,640,000 gallons for every 1,000 homes per year. Water softeners should be banned or at least controlled.

Soft water is a luxury. Hard water requires more soap, but is still cheaper and better for your health. If the public demanded softer water than the wells supply, it would be more efficient to treat the water at a central location rather than in each home.

Gloomy for poor, sick, jobless

Economy good for middle income

by LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The statistical picture of the American economy on the eve of the presidential election shapes up as comfortable if you can afford it, but gloomy if you're sick, poor or jobless.

The economic outlook is almost certain to become a hotly debated issue in the closing days of the campaign.

All of the pre-election statistics now are in, and the indicators for prices, jobs and production show that healthy, educated Americans with jobs are holding their own, perhaps advancing. But the ill-educated, those in bad health, and the poor and jobless are losing ground.

THE CENSUS Bureau says the gap between America's rich and poor increased in the two most recent years surveyed, 1974 and 1975. At the same time the numbers of Americans living in poverty increased, reversing a trend of an ever smaller percentage of impoverished Americans.

The Labor Dept. Thursday said the cost of living increased a moderate 0.4 per cent in September.

But despite the 4.8 per cent annual rate of inflation — less than half the rates of 1974 and 1975 — Americans who earned less than the median income of $264 a week lost ground.

The department said real spendable earnings — after adjustment for inflation and eductions for taxes and social security — for a working class family of four dipped 0.5 per cent in September and was 0.8 per cent less than a year ago. These are Americans whose gross weekly earnings are $179.19.

AND A SIZABLE segment of the consumer price increases was for medical services, an expense item that hits the sick harder than the healthy.

Although the Commerce Dept. said construction of new homes, duplexes and apartments soared in September to the highest level in nearly three years, the Census Bureau said prices of these dwellings indicate they are for the upper middle income brackets.

New homes cost a median $46,000, which the National Assn. of Home Builders says prices four of every five prospective buyers out of the market.

"This is not a sign that new homes cost $46,000," said NAHB Pres. John Hart. "But it means builders are building to this market because these are the families that can afford to pay mortgage interest rates of 9 per cent or more."

UNEMPLOYMENT declined last spring, but began to rise again this summer to a high of 7.9 per cent in both July and August. It was 7.8 per cent in September, the highest level for any residential election year since 1940.

The broadest measure of economic achievement in the United States is the Gross National Product. In a report this week, the Commerce Dept. said the GNP after adjustment for inflation rose 4 per cent between July and September — a pace that matches population growth.

According to the department's top economist, Dr. John Kendrick, the 4 per cent GNP growth rate was the amount needed to maintain employment at its current level, but would do nothing to reduce unemployment.

Many towns straining at purse strings

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Is your city heading toward a financial crisis? Many are.

When you apply for a loan, the lender asks you a series of questions about your income and your other current debts. Your answers allow him to judge your ability to repay the requested loan. If you're too deeply in debt, the request is likely to be refused. You then may have to borrow from another source at a higher rate of interest, or cut back on your expenses.

But giving the loan officer an accurate picture of your current debts may not be enough. Let's say that in a year you have to start shelling out $3,000 per year for college tuition for one of your children. That's going to put you in somewhat of a bind.

If the loan officer is aware of this, it could well put you in a terrible rent request. If the loan officer is not aware of it, and the loan is granted, it could well ut you n a terrible squeeze once the tuition bills come in.

Now picture the city you live in doing the same thing. It has to borrow millions of dollars to build a new school or repair streets, or install a sewer line, or any of dozens of other needs. But in its loan application the city neglects to adequately disclose two vital facts: (1) how much it's going to have to start paying out in future years to meet pension obligations; and (2) that it has not been stashing enough away currently to meet those obligations when they fall due.

If the loan is granted — that is, if the city's bonds are sold to willing investors — the city is in way over its head and the day of reckoning will be shattering to the taxpayers who have to foot the bill.

If all needed information was disclosed, and the loan was effectively turned down, the taxpayers would have a clear picture on the kind of belt-tightening they're in for, and they can be better prepared to cope with the problem intelligently and prudently.

That's the essence of a report recently issued by the accounting firm of Coopers and Lybrand, in conjunction with the University of Michigan. The report studied the financial reporting practices of 43 cities and concluded that a day of reckoning is ahead if financial reporting practices of our cities aren't sharply improved.

Among the findings:

• There is a recommended format for municipal financial accounting, known as the Governmental Accounting, Auditing and Financial Reporting manual. Less than 400 of some 18,000 local governments have volunteered to comply with it. Some forces in the accounting world say that GAAFR isn't good enough to do the proper job. But it may be a starting point.

• Less than one-quarter of the cities surveyed gave full disclosure on their unfunded pension liabilities, and only about 7 per cent disclosed the full impact of long-term leases that the city was obliged on.

This is a matter you can reckon with right in the halls of your own local city council. They're your dollars, and you have a say in what's done with thtm. Inquire, study and speak out if necessary.

Chrysler sets 3rd quarter profit

Chrysler Corp. Monday reported record third quarter profits of $76.2 million in a sharp reversal of 1975 when it lost $79 million in the same three-month period. The record pushed Chrysler's nine-month profits to $303.4 million, more than it earned in all of its best year — a $303 million level in 1968. The Chrysler report was the first from the U.S. automakers for the July-September quarter.

General Motors later this week is expected to report a record $350 million profit. Ford Motor Co. earnings are expected to be no better than about $42 million because of its just-ended 28-day nationwide strike and the inability to get back into full production.

Car, appliance costs to rise

Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., the nation's ninth largest steel producer, said Monday a "substantial" price increase will have to be made on the steel products that go into automobiles and home appliances. The company did not say, however, when or how much the price increase would be on flat-rolled steel, which accounts for 85 per cent of its shipments. U.S. Steel Corp., the country's biggest steelmaker, declined comment pending release today of its third quarter results.

Wheeling-Pittsburgh was the first steel firm to announce a 4.5 per cent price increase effective Oct. 1 that was eventually canceled in apparent deference to the auto industry and the government. A 6 per cent increase went into effect June 1.

Blue Cross health rate hike asked

If the Illinois Insurance Dept. decides to approve a proposed rate increase, state residents will be paying from 21 per cent to 32 per cent more for Blue Cross and Blue Shield health coverage. The increase, effective Jan. 1, would affect some 500,000 Illinois subscribers. The Chicago-based Blue Cross and Blue Shield organization filed requests for the proposed increases, saying it needs the extra revenue to help absorb soaring medical care costs. Richard O'Connell, a spokesman for Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said Saturday the organization "broke even last year which is essentially the mark that we strive for each year." But he said "there's no way Blue Cross could continue, or anyone could continue, without increasing rates . . . especially when you're on a break even basis."

Under the proposals, the rate for an unmarried nongroup subscriber under age 30 would rise from $34.56 to $42.16 for two months and the rate for family nongroup coverage for members between 50 and 64 would rise from $202.64 to $241.08 for two months. Increases for nongroup coverage would average about 27 per cent. For persons over 65 who subscribe to Medicare supplemental coverage, the rates would go up about 32 per cent, from $15.50 to $20.44 for two months.

British pound hits all-time low

Britain's battered pound plummeted to an all-time low of $1.5950 Monday. A newspaper story categorically denied by the government started a panic on the currency exchange that dropped the pound 7.5 cents in 45 minutes. The Sunday Times article said the U.S. Treasury Dept. and the International Monetary Fund had decided the pound should drop to $1.50 as a condition for a $3.9 billion IMF loan to Britain. Panicky traders nearly made the story come true when the market opened Monday. In less than an hour, frenzied trading dropped the pound to $1.5730, its lowest dollar value in history. The pound finally closed at $1.5950 — still a loss of 5.35 cents from Friday's close. Seven months ago the pound brought $2.0245. The newspaper report had impact on money markets throughout Europe. The pound fell to new lows in Zurich, Frankfurt and Paris, pulling the dollar with it.

Chicago board checks violators

The Chicago Board Options Exchange Monday said it has taken disciplinary action against eight of its independent market-maker members for alleged rules violations. The action was taken on recommendation of the board's business condcut committee, which said, "It appears these individuals were involved in a pattern of reversing trades with the same member or group of members during short periods of time. The transactions usually consisted of buying and selling one option contract at the same price.

The eight members are: Robert S. Schwartz, fined $2,000, suspended two weeks and censured; Steven Newman, fined $1,500, suspended two seeks and censured; Stephen H. Barnes and John Moffat — each fined $1,500, suspended three weeks and censured; Edward A. Toppel, fined $1,000 and censured; David W. Darney, 30-day suspension and censure; John O'Rourke, fined $1,000, suspended two weeks and censured; Paul T. Astrene, fined $1,500, suspended one week, censured. The board said the eight men, without admitting or denying the allegations, consented to the panalties.

Dow down slightly; trading slow

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market drifted to a mixed close Monday in the slowest trading in three weeks on the New York Stock Exchange, as blue-chips failed to sustain a late rally attempt.

Many investors retreated to the sidelines amid economic and political uncertainties. Also, trading may have been hampered by the official Veterans' Day holiday for federal government workers.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down four points at the outset and ahead a point in early afternoon, fell 0.75 to 938. The blue-chip average lost 6.15 points Friday and 9.97 Thursday, but still managed to gain 1.75 points last week.

THE NYSE COMMON stock index gained 0.04 to 53.46 and the average price of a common share increased by three cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.11 to 100.96. Declines edged advances, 688 to 661, among the 1,840 issues crossing the tape. There were 491 unchanged issues.

Volume totaled 13,310,000 shares, down from the 17,870,000 traded Friday. It was the lowest turnover since 12,625,070 shares changed hands Oct. 4, the Yom Kippur holiday. It was the seventh slowest session of the year.

Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. There was no change in the average price of an Amex share. But declines topped advances, 288 to 304, among the 834 issues crossing the tape. Volume totaled 1,450,000 shares, compared with 1,820,000 traded Friday.

Metro East: An enigma on the Mighty Mississippi in the midst of rural Illinois

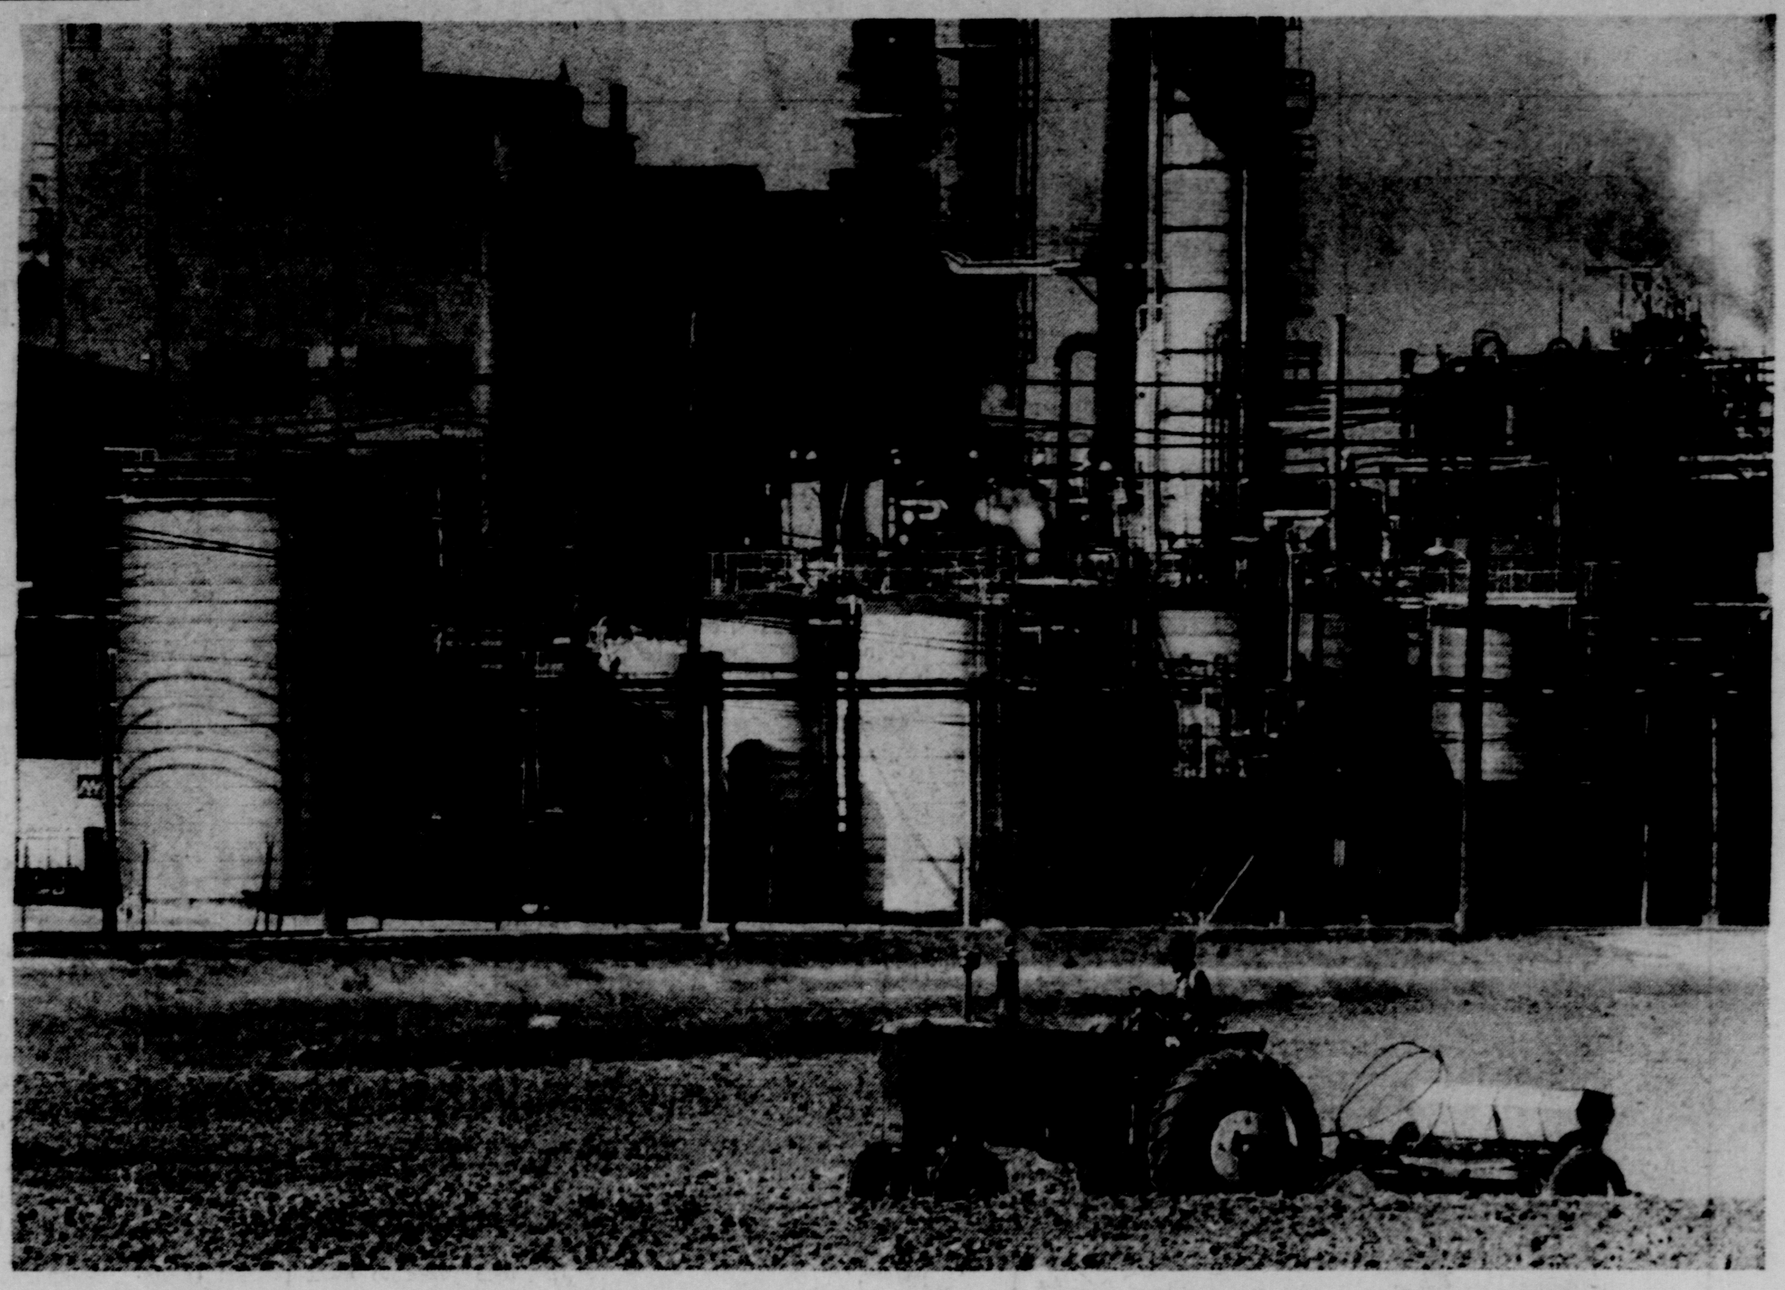
Story by Toni Ginnetti

Photographs by Dave Tonge



Farm and factory — Monsanto's mechanized maze watches over an East St. Louis man of the soil.

(EAST ST. LOUIS) — The scene is an enigma.

It confronts you suddenly and soberingly even as the rich, picture-book farmlands are still within sight.

Beside you are the Mighty Mississippi and the patchwork shops and homes of Cahokia, Illinois' oldest village. Beyond is the dimly glimmering Gateway Arch to the West, standing engineeringly perfect, master of the view.

And then you see it. The maze of pipelines, the calliope of smokestacks, the cold steel girders jabbing into a merky grey layer of grimy sky clinging to the horizon, intimidating the attempts of the day's last rays of sunlight to glint through.

And almost immediately you sense it — the stark, haunting spectre of a city choking in the grip of its own decay.

Drive through East St. Louis and the feeling takes on forms. A farmer rides a tractor tilling an open tract of land, and only yards behind him is the giant Monsanto industrial plant.

Ride along a section of Collinsville Avenue past the boarded up stores and weed-infested vacant warehouses and train yards where young blacks walk by aimlessly.

But circle the block and find three mounted policemen riding single-file alongside the snarled downtown traffic, clip-clopping in methodical strides past the blind man begging on the corner and the faceless throng of blacks waiting for a bus.

East St. Louis — this is a "bad" city, they tell you, a ghetto blighted by crime and poverty.

And the biggest problem is a joblessness, they will say. As many as 3,552 of the city's 70,000 are out of work. The figure reads 14.1 per cent in the state record books. That cpmpares with a statewide unemployment rate of 7.7 per cent.

Francis Touchette, 64, has lived with East St. Louis' problems for 34 years. He is supervisor of Centerville Township, an area just outside the city. He also has served since 1932 as Democratic county committeeman.

Strangely, it is progress that has hurt East St. Louis, he says.

"We went to a complete changeover in industrial habits. Our transportation is a complete changeover. When I was a young man, water and railroads were relied on and East St. Louis was a hub."

Willard Barthel has been the St. Clair County Republican chairman since 1968. Though his party's stronghold is in the suburban areas of the county outside the solidly Democratic city, he too, sees the troubles.

"So many of the well-established businesses have moved out of East St. Louis," he says. "The federal government has poured so much money into the city and it hasn't done much good."

The problems here seem to feed on one another, and the talk of unemployment here seldom comes without bringing up welfare, corruption crime and race.

"In my opinion, the thing that has hurt East St. Louis is graft," Craig Hipp, 30, will say. Hipp works for the Illini Sand Company here, manning the barge and machinery used to haul sand for industry from the Mississippi River bottom.

"They get the money to do things like build roads, but when the time comes to start the work, the money isn't there."

And he'll warn you, as others will, to avoid the city streets after 6 o'clock. "I know blacks who say they won't even go out at night," the admonition goes.

"The white people living in East St. Louis are moving to Belleville," 72-year-old William Robert Bryant tells you. He moved to the southeast suburb in 1936.

Outside the fruit stand he has run from his Belleville home for 18 years, the retired railroad worker will talk to you about how whites and businesses are coming to Belleville to escape the city and its 70 per cent black majority.

Unemployed blacks means blacks on welfare, and that fuels the resentment.

"People don't like those on welfare," Barthel says. "They say instead of having them on welfare, they should be working.

"We find a lot of young people coming in for general assistance," Touchette says. "They can't find jobs. I qualify that because I don't think some of them want to work. But I can see where so many young people feel they want to start out big. I don't know if it's because of the high cost of living or what."

Touchette would dispute those who say welfare recipients are as well off out of work as they might be earning a living. "I don't think that's true at all," he says, citing the monthly allotment of $5,393 annually in his county for a single person.

"It's not enough to get by," he says. "What the answer is, I don't know."

And that feeling is not isolated, for while there is concern for the problems here, there is a feeling of futility, too.

And if there is hope that the answers can be found through candidates and campaign promises, there is little evidence of it.

"I think there's a fair amount of apathy," Barthel says. "A lot of people object to the idea of so much welfare being pumped into the East St. Louis area," he says. "And costs keep going up, prices are too high.

Faraway thoughts of a better time.

Course, this is something you hear all the time.

"Course, we were granted the airport," Barthel says, a reference to the federal government's decision to locate a new St. Louis metropolitan airport in the nearby Columbia-Waterloo area rather than on the Missouri side of the Mississippi River.

The airport and the jobs it will bring has offered hope for this area, people here will say. Yet, as Barthel will point out, the construction plans are still long range. And while some here will tell you that things have gotten better in the last two or three years, there is an undeniable feeling that the Metro East area's current woes and frustrations are not about to vanish quickly.

"I view the entire of the coming election as a sad situation, and it's one I've never seen before," Touchette says. "I have been in politics for many years and I have never seen anything like this."

Barthal sees more interest among those in the suburban area of St. Clair County which he predicts will help Republicans. The fact that James R. Thompson's running mate is Belleville native son Dave O'Neal, the county's popular sheriff and one of few Republicans to win election here in decades, also is expected to aid the GOP cause.

Still, there is little sign of spirit or spark or even much talk that those running for office hold the key that will mean the difference.

"I just don't see any stimulation among anyone anywhere," Touchette says. "I drive in 80 miles today and I see not one political sign on a car. It's something that is not being discussed.

"I've checked the statistics on this. There are guys coming in here happy because they've registered 155 people. I go back to the records four years ago and find we registered 350 for this same period then.

"I don't see younger people even caring to register. I thought when (Jimmy) Carter won the nomination, people would say 'here's a guy who went by the politicians and went out and won it' and I thought we'd have every young guy in here saying 'I want to register.'

"But that hasn't happened. I think people are unhappy with our government and I don't think it's just Watergate.

"People are not wound up," he shrugs. "They just don't know where to go. It's just not there."

Budget stores sharpen up their fashion image

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Think "discount store" and what do you see? Probably not much more than stark rows of televisions and hair dryers, wailing children in strollers, and those ever-flashing blue light specials, right?

The "once in a lifetime" specials are still in full force at today's discount stores, but you'll find a lot more to choose from than ironing boards and coffee makers. The ready-to-wear apparel departments are coming on strong as both regular customers and department store dropouts snap up cowl neck sweaters and leather handbags at a substantial savings from their retail store counterparts.

"There's been a real change in discount stores over the past few years," says Carole Shepard, instructor of retailing at Harper College. "When they started carrying clothing items in the '50s, you'd see only fashion that was on its way out because the stores didn't want to take a chance on unsold merchandise. Now that their buying power is so great, that's all changed."

A STROLL THROUGH the local K-Mart or Treasury these days is likely to turn up such classy bargains as a real leather handbag for $10.99 or a wool blend tabard vest for $7.97. In many cases the merchandise is indistinguishable from similar items at a major department or specialty store; a dress spotted recently at a specialty shop for $28 also showed up at K-Mart for $17.88.

Discount stores have always held an appeal for growing families on a budget. But singles and upper middle class families are now much less likely to turn up their noses if it means a bargain, and as a result the stores have expanded from their "safe" fashion image to one that often includes high-fashion items like gaucho pants and cowl neck sweaters.

Traditionally, fashions at discount stores were either at the peak of their popularity or on their way out, primarily because the stores didn't want to take a chance on a new item that wouldn't sell quickly. But as the stores' buying power increased, so did the quality of their merchandise. While the stores still stay in the mainstream of the fashion field (a K-Mart representative says the chain stores are "fashion followers, not leaders"), their merchandising clout allows them to show the same styles that are appearing in the retail stores.

VENTURE, FOR EXAMPLE, considers itself a cross between a true discount store and a department store. Prices are higher here than at other discount chains, and a store representative boasts that "you'll see the same things in Carson's as you see here."

"We're definitely aiming at the more affluent customer," says Hal Troupin. "It's still primarily young families, but the income level is going up as our merchandise does."

Of course, the stores' basic premise of high-volume selling and a self-service approach has remained intact. K-Mart may boast full-page ads in Glamour magazine and Venture may be expanding its use of fashion displays, but "you still have to know what you want and where to get it . . . the extra help just isn't there," says Ms. Shepard.

"WITHOUT A DOUBT, the meat of discounting is its operational approach," says Venture's Troupin. "By using less expensive buildings, fewer sales people and central checkouts, we can also lower the price."

Fewer sales clerks may account for a portion of the lower prices, but the real secret of selling a brand name sweater at a third the cost of its retail store mate goes a little deeper. Leaving out labels, buying a line of fashions that the manufacturer over-produced and purchasing in large quantities all lower the price tag, and the clothes from these sources are the real McCoys.

Several manufacturers also operate a separate division for discount stores, and these clothes are the same style as the retail store version but may sport a different trim or less expensive buttons. While several stores in the Northwest suburbs deal with these vendors, they are quick to proclaim that the quality of the garment isn't affected by the variation.

IF THE DIFFERENCE is in the fabric, the piece of clothing may not hold up as long as the retail item, but if the variation is as slight as a belt buckle, "you just can't assume the retail version is better," says Ms. Shepard.

"The key is to be a good shopper," she continues. "You'll find poor quality at any store, but you have to be aware of fabrics and construction to know what kind of deal you're getting."

So for the shopper who's looking for variety in his or her clothing, if not necessarily longevity, the discount store may be a smart move.

"Everybody's looking to save money, and the department stores are chasing them away by charging so much," says Troupin. "We can offer the same things at a much lower cost, and people are taking advantage of it."

A WELL-DRESSED woman browsing at The Treasury recently seemed to bear him out. As she fingered several polyester scarves she remarked in surprise, "Not bad for $1.44, are they?"

They may not be silk originals, but for the cost of a lunch at the drive-in, how can you go wrong?

Miniskirt reappears in Paris

by ALINE MOSBY

PARIS — Paris has brought back the minidress.

The 12,000 international buyers at the spring-summer ready-to-wear fashion shows have seen the flash of knees for the first time since the demise of the miniskirt five years ago.

The new leggy look is only partial. Most of the clothes seen by the end of the first of two weeks of showings wander from knee to midcalf. Paris does not impose one length any more.

Since fashion evolves but does not exactly repeat, the 1977 minidress is not like its ancestors.

The new versions make the girls look like peasants, Julius Caesar in a toga or a Japanese medieval warrior.

JAPANESE designer Issey Miyake's show at the old Salle Wagram dance hall won wild applause for baggy dresses, yanked up and bloused over low hip belts or fanny-wrap sashes.

Miyake, one of the hottest new stars of Paris, features Japanese colors of metal grey, earth brown and muddy purple and the wraparound kimono look. But he has his own ideas, such as floating evening dresses with paintings on the upper back or on huge matching floating shawls.

The new shows also resurrected the one-piece bathing suit, although there are plenty of bikinis, including microscopic African lioncloths, at the show of still another Japanese designer, Kanfai Yamamoto.

Miyake showed one-piece swimsuits with matching beachbags that unroll to become beach cover-ups.

ANOTHER NEW star, Jean-Charles de Castelbajac, also paraded one-piece swimsuits. His thing is to make clothes of rough natural materials, such as canvas, felt and muslin.

Jean-Claude de Lucas joined the above-knee comeback. Peasanty double skirts — cotton floral prints over eyelets — were teamed with bare black tops, little black cardigans and matching shawls.

Shawls in for fall

Shawls are among the most popular accessories for fall and winter. And they're usually huge. Many are long rectangles, to wrap around throat and shoulders several times. Others are big triangles with fringed borders.

Jolly St. Nick makes great gift

ANY CHILD would love to cuddle this crocheted Santa Claus. He also makes a great decoration to trim the mantel for the holidays.

by JUDY LOVE

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

He's red and green with a great white beard, a perky pink face and a French knot for a nose. And he's yours — if you can crochet.

The stitching is simple so even beginners can practice their new crocheting skills on this jolly Santa. He's so easy to make and such fun to own, you'll want to make several — for yourself and to share.

The stitchery Santa Claus makes a great gift for the youngsters in your life. Or you can trim a mantel or a gift with jolly St. Nick. Once made your Claus becomes a family heirloom for use for future Christmases.

Start now, and you can crochet a sleigh-full of miniature Santas by Christmastime. You'll need a four-inch foam or rubber ball for the body and a three-inch ball for the head.

Using a yarn like Hobby Craft of Creslan acrylic, you'll need a four-ounce skein of red, white and green, plus an ounce of pink and a dash of black. A small golden or sparkly buckle is a festive finishing touch for Santa's belt.

For your copy of instructions to crochet a colorful Santa Claus, just send 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet no. 459 and be sure to include your name, address and zip code.

Used sewing machine may be best buy

If your budget will not stretch to cover the cost of a new sewing machine or your machine usage is limited to simple sewing, a good used machine could be the best buy for you, according to Marjorie Sohn, University of Illinois Extension clothing specialist.

Used sewing machines can be purchased from retail stores that sell not only new, but also reclaimed or trade-in machines. Another source of used machines is a household auction. Or you may find one for sale in a newspaper ad listed by an individual or at a garage sale.

A reconditioned sewing machine purchased from a retail dealer should carry a warranty of service, she says. If you buy from an individual the price may be lower, but usually you must take the sewing machine "as is."

A number of factors should be considered in buying a used sewing machine.

- Will it meet your sewing needs and is the price right for your pocketbook?
- Are parts available for the machine, such as bobbins, needles, and additional attachments?
- Does the machine sew well and is it in good condition?

When buying any machine, it is important to try it out to see how it handles, as well as if it produces good stitches, Ms. Sohn advises. Notice if the machine runs smoothly without unnecessary vibrations or noise. Check the ease of threading the machine, bobbin tension, pressure and length of stitch as well as the ease of adjusting.

Be sure the electrical wiring is flexible and does not have bare wires showing, she says. If the belts or chain belts are worn, frayed or loose, they will need to be replaced.

After you have checked out the used machines and selected the one that best suits your needs, be sure you know the total purchase price.

If you are not paying cash, remember that the asking price does not include interest charges. Don't allow special offers or deals to influence or tempt you beyond what you can or want to pay.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Circumcision choice an individual matter

I know there is a higher incidence of cancer of the penis in uncircumcised males. I would like to know if it is possible for adult males to be circumcised and what the operation would entail. Is the operation painful for very long after it is performed? Can most doctors do it or does it require a surgeon? Can it be done in the office or must it be done in the hospital? Would you recommend that uncircumcised adults be circumcised?

Yes, the danger of cancer of the penis is greater in uncircumcised males. In a study from the Cancer Research Unit at the South African Institute for Medical Research in Johannesburg, investigators reported that a high number of Bantu men developed cancer of the penis — particularly the noncircumcised men. The highest incidence involved men who wore an artificial prepuce cover, a practice common among the native Bantu.

This same report confirmed what other investigators had noticed about the relationship between cancer of the cervix in women and lack of circumcision of the man. In South Africa cancer of the cervix is the most common malignancy in black women. The Lesotho group have the highest rate of cancer of the cervix although 50 per cent of the men are circumcised. By contrast, in Natal where men are not circumcised the rate of cancer of the cervix is quite low. In plain English, circumcision of the male is not a major factor in causing cancer of the cervix in women regardless of what misinformation you may have read to the contrary.

Cancer of the penis is fairly uncommon in our society. When it occurs it is almost always in an uncircumcised male. However, that does not mean circumcision is necessary. The key to preventing the cancer is cleanliness which may be dependent upon the individual's anatomy and the ease that he can practice hygiene. If the individual is able and willing to do this regularly there is little likelihood that cancer of the penis can develop.

AS I HAVE mentioned before, with age, drying and constriction of the skin may make it difficult to keep clean. And occasionally the skin gets caught in the retracted position, creating real and sometimes immediate problems that require prompt medical attention.

The operation can be done easily on most adult males. It is not particularly painful. After all, despite its location it is just a skin incision. If a complete circumcision is done in an adult, the period of recovery is usually limited to the short time it takes a simple skin incision to heal. The newly exposed tip, however, is quite sensitive, not painful but sensitive, somewhat analogous to the tender feet a person may have when first going barefoot.

I don't think it is necessary for every adult to have a circumcision. It depends upon the anatomical situation and the individual's hygienic habits. It is a personal decision. In most cases I regard this like I do long or short hair. If you want to have it long, keep it clean. If you are not willing to make the effort, cut it short.

Stains on suede jacket need professional care

Dear Dorothy: I have a beige suede jacket that has perspiration stains on the back of the collar. Rather than have the entire jacket cleaned, is there any way to spot-clean just this portion of the collar? — E. D. Luce

Suede is such a fragile material that, as a general rule, cleaning needs to be entrusted to a very good cleaner. What happened with you is not unusual. This is why so many people wear scarves when they put on suede jackets. The only thing I've found that has worked is fuller's earth. I went so far as to experiment with a lovely blue suede jacket, daubing a blob of margarine on an inside part, rubbing fuller's earth on the spot and letting it set for 30 minutes. The grease spot was gone when a sponge rubber brush was applied. This is as far as I'm willing to go. When it gets dirty, the jacket is going to a reliable cleaner. Sometimes the color comes off in cleaning and only an expert knows how to re-dye the garment.

Dear Dorothy: There's a stain on the inside of the glass on my oven door. I've worked on both inside and outside with 0000 steel wool and the cleaner with oxalic acid. No luck. Help! — Linda Barber

There's no way to help, Linda. Most of the new generation of ovens have this sealed space. One can barely get a thin knife down through the vents at the top of the door. Only way one could get to these spots is by taking the door apart. That's a load of trouble and when you got it all cleaned, it would get stained again — alas.

Dear Dorothy: This is for all those who sew who buy materials with the care label printed on the selvage. It's wise to attach these instructions somewhere on the inside of the garment. — Josie Yarbrough

Vacation refreshes golden memories

To refresh memories of their wedding 50 years ago in Allston, Mass., Philip and Edyth Robinson of Mount Prospect took a two-week auto trip to New England early in October.

It was 50 years ago Oct. 11 the couple exchanged marriage vows in the Allston Congregational Church. On Oct. 10 this year they attended church services there, pleasantly recalling the nuptial festivities in their original setting. The Robinsons also traveled through Vermont and Massachusetts, visiting relatives and old friends along the way.

Philip and Edyth met in Boston when they were 16. He was from Ipswich, Mass., and she from Rutland, Vt. Both attended school in Massachusetts, Philip at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and Edyth at Girls High School of Boston.

THEIRS WAS a long courtship before the wedding date was set in 1926. Philip was already working for General Electric at the River Works in Lynn, Mass., for three years when they were married. In 1938 he was transferred to the Chicago office, they settled in Mount Prospect and have lived there ever since. Soon after moving in, the Robinsons became members of South Church Community Baptist where they are still active.

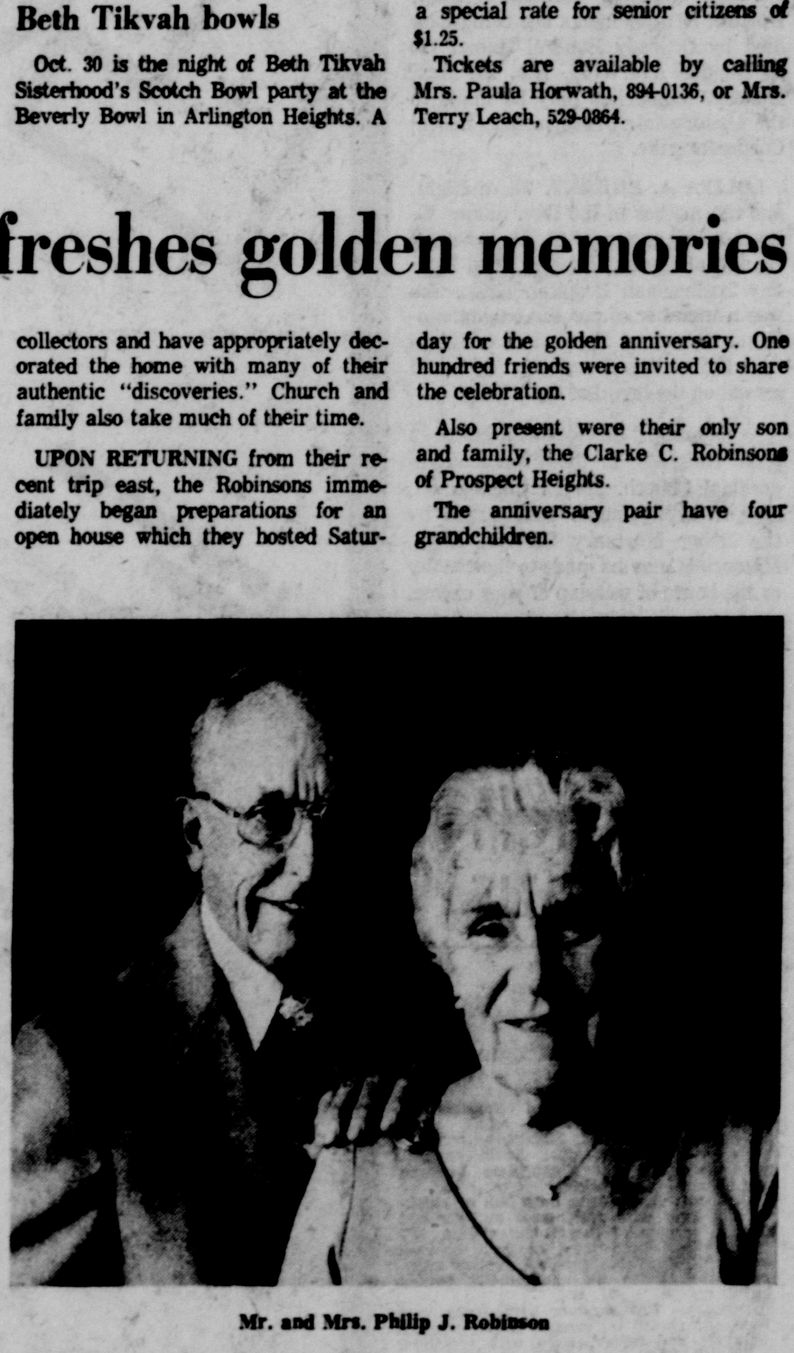
Although he retired from General Electric in 1965 after 42 years of service, Philip, now 76, has many interests.

He and Edyth, 75, are avid antique collectors and have appropriately decorated the home with many of their authentic "discoveries." Church and family also take much of their time.

UPON RETURNING from their recent trip east, the Robinsons immediately began preparations for an open house which they hosted Saturday for the golden anniversary. One hundred friends were invited to share the celebration.

Also present were their only son and family, the Clarke C. Robinsons of Prospect Heights.

The anniversary pair have four grandchildren.



Mr. and Mrs. Philip J. Robinson

United Church of Christ leader dies

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Rev. Robert V. Moss Jr., president of the United Church of Christ and a New Testament scholar, died of cancer Monday, a church spokesman said. He was 54.

He died in Mountainside Hospital, Montclair, N.J., where he was admitted Friday. Moss, who lived in Upper Montclair, was taken ill in late August.

Moss was a controversial social activist and was the second president of the 1.8-million-member church, formed in 1957 by a merger of the Congregational and Evangelical Reformed denominations.

HE WAS ONE of the first religious leaders to call for women to be placed in "highly visible" church leadership positions.

Under his prodding, the United Church set up task forces on women, and last year the denomination adopted as its first priority "the elimination of institutional and cultural sexism in church and society."

He was a major antiwar activist and an outspoken advocate of unconditional amnesty for war resisters, although his son, John, was disabled by wounds suffered in Vietnam.

At the international level, Moss headed the first official delegation from U.S. chuches to East Germany and was the first American permitted to preach there. He also was concerned with Third World development and a redistribution of material wealth.

MOSS WAS AN official observer at the Second Vatican Council and served as co-chairman of the Roman Catholic-Presbyterian and Reformed dialogue group from 1966 to 1968.

Born in Wilson, N.C., he was graduated from Franklin and Marshall College and received a doctorate from the Divinity School of the University of Chicago.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in the First Congregational Church in Montclair.

Survivors include his wife, Junia, his parents and a brother.

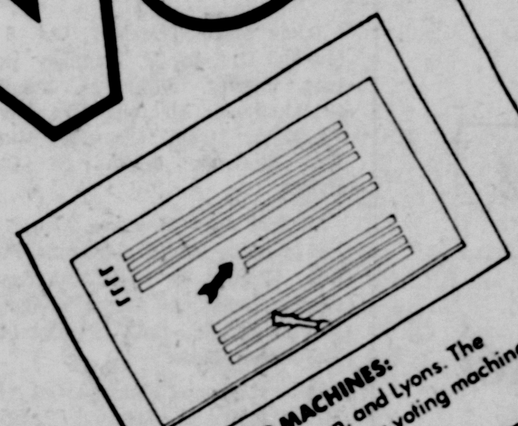
YOU CAN EXPRESS YOUR SUPPORT FOR THESE JUDGES AND VOTE FOR THEIR RETENTION BY VOTING "YES" FOR EACH JUDGE.

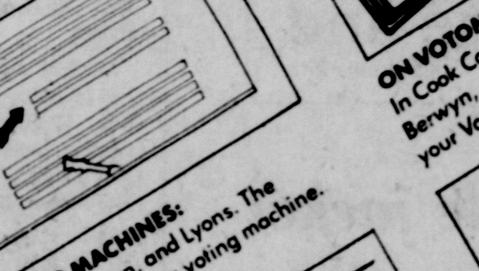
The 32 Judges on the 1976 Judicial Retention Ballot represent 330 years of experience collectively. They have assisted in reducing the backlog of cases and cutting down the length of time it takes to bring a case to trial from 60 to 26 months—one of the shortest waiting periods in the nation. These experienced judges are dedicated to protecting the legal rights of the families of Chicago and Cook County. Your "Yes" vote affirms your support of their judicial performance.

Election Tuesday, November 2nd. Polls open 6 A.M. to 6 P.M.

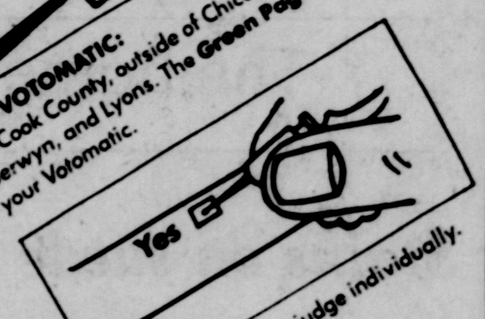
ON VOTING MACHINES: In Chicago, Berwyn, and Lyons. The Green Section of your voting machine.



ON VOTOMATIC: In Cook County, outside of Chicago, Berwyn, and Lyons. The Green Pages of your Votomatic.



Pull the YES lever for each judge individually, and leave it down.



Punch YES for each judge individually.

VOTE YES FOR EACH JUDGE.

The Circuit Court of Cook County is The People's Court. Keep it strong; keep it fair. Vote "Yes" to retain the 32 qualified and experienced Judges who ask for your support on the 1976 Judicial Retention Ballot (the Green Section of your voting machine or Votomatic). Remember: Vote "Yes" for each Judge individually; vote "Yes" so that all of them may continue to work for you.

Ask Andy

Coconut is the fruit of the tropics

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Sandy Sobczyk, 10, of Omaha, Neb., for her question:

IS THE COCONUT A FRUIT OR A VEGETABLE?

Plant scientists tell us the coconut is a tropical fruit. It grows on a tree with a slender, gently curving trunk that may reach up into the sky for 100 feet. At the top of the branchless trunk sits a crown of heavy feather-like leaves. Scattered among the leaves grow waxy spikes of small white flowers that produce the clusters of coconuts.

Mature coconut palms flower throughout the year, and you can almost always find a few ripe coconuts on any tree. The trees begin to bear fruit when they are 7 or 8 years old, and by age 15 they are in full production. Wild trees may bear 50 to 75 nuts a year, but a well-tended tree may yield 100.

The fruit of the coconut palm is an oval-shaped nut 9 to 12 inches long and about eight inches thick. Its outer rind is hard and smooth and underneath is a thick coating of fibrous material. This tough waterproof shell lets it float on the water like a cork and no doubt explains why it is found growing wild on many South Pacific islands.

The sweet meat of the coconut is a basic food for many islanders. It can be eaten raw or shredded and dried. Oil can be extracted from the meat and used for cooking, lighting or making soap. The whitish liquid, or milk, is deliciously refreshing and can be drunk right from the shell.

The trunk of the tree can be used as is or cut into lumber for building purposes. The nutshells are burned for fuel or cut to make useful bowls and other household utensils. The large, tough leaves provide perfect materials for weaving mats, baskets or thatching, and the sturdy elastic fibers from the husk are used to produce ropes, brushes, brooms and mats.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Brian Nagel, 8, of Scottsdale, Ariz., for his question:

DO BIRDS ALWAYS BUILD NEW NESTS?

There are almost as many types of birds' nests as there are birds — from intricate works of art requiring many days to build to shoddy, carelessly assembled homes that fall apart in the first good breeze. Some birds don't build a nest at all — they lay their eggs on bare ground or rocks. Many birds build a new nest for each set of fledglings, but some, such as eagles, use the same nest year after year, adding bits of vegetation and debris each time until it assumes the proportions of a tree house.

At least 80 species are "borrowers," using the abandoned nests or burrows of other birds or mammals. A few toss the rightful owner out, lay their eggs and then leave them in the care of foster parents. Frequently hawks, kites, falcons and owls take over the vacated nests of herons, crows, magpies and rooks. The burrowing owl of California moves into the unoccupied holes of ground squirrels. Many small birds, such as the tree swallow, the bluebird and the crested flycatcher, will place soft lining materials in old woodpecker holes.

Nostalgia buffs treated to best of 'Rodgers-Hart'

by LAURA SCHMALLBACH

If the audience reaction at the opening performance of "Rodgers and Hart: A Musical Celebration" is any clue, good old-fashioned song and dance is holding its own in the face of today's trend of "bedroom and bathroom" humor in entertainment.

Nostalgia buffs had a field day at Arlington Park Theatre's version of the Broadway production. Faces were beaming and toes were tapping as the predominantly middle-aged audience reminisced with the help of corny jokes, straw hats, and spritely Charlestons.

Smatterings of "I remember that one" applause greeted many of the 60 musical numbers. The crowd enjoyed watching the show as much as the six actors and the four-piece ensemble conducted by Chicagoan Ray Papai seemed to enjoy doing it.

IRONICALLY, "Rodgers and Hart" was saddled with several potential headaches when it opened at Arlington Park. Actress Dorothy Loudon packed her bags just prior to opening night because co-star Constance Towers was snatching up the best tunes; the prospect of 60 songs in a two-hour time span sounded rather ambitious (not to mention monotonous); the small stage of Arlington's theater-in-the-round didn't seem suited to a song and dance routine.

But while the first act was a bit sluggish and the stage cramped, the tribute comes off a success. The show's format is a simple one — song and dance vignettes of Rodgers and Hart favorites interspersed with a few verbal explanations as background — and it serves as an effective showcase for the duo's talent.

Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart were one of America's most prolific songwriting teams; in 1926 they had five shows on Broadway. This tribute, conceived by Richard Lewine and John Fearnley and directed by Fearnley, offers smorgasbord of their melodies, from the zippy "Jupiter Forbid" to "In a Mountain Greenery."

Mid-week review

As John Gavin points out in one of the show's monologues, the Rodgers-Hart product was often "too sophisticated" for the Hollywood of its day. We benefit from the sophistication today; even a hard-nosed teenager can get a kick out of Hart's clever lines in "Way Out West on West End Avenue."

WHILE THE SHOW concentrates on music, Lee Roy Reams' choreography is complementary and well-executed. Reams and Toni Kaye, a lead dancer on the Carol Burnett Show, share the dance numbers with plenty of gusto. Reams also boasts the show's strongest voice.

As the theater-goers filed out last week, more than one star-struck fan was mumbling something about "that gorgeous John Gavin." He's exactly that, and his sinfully good looks make up for a less-than-gorgeous voice.

Gavin does handle the monologues with flair, and he's best when sharing the musical spotlight with his wife and co-star Constance Towers, an old pro who most recently appeared in the touring production of "The King and I" with Yul Brynner.

Towers really belts out her songs and milks the notes for all they're worth, even if she's left gasping for breath in the process. But her professionalism shines through, and she does a great job with torchlighters like "It Never Entered My Mind."

Rounding out the production is Beth Fowler and Tony Tanner, a versatile performer who directed the last Arlington Park production, "The Mousetrap."

"Rodgers and Hart" will be on stage through Nov. 14.

Stayman finds heart fit

The Stayman convention in some form or other is used by at least 99 per cent of experts and at least 90 per cent of tournament players. In its basic form it accomplishes two objects. First, it allows partner of the opening notrump bidder to sign off at two diamonds, hearts or spades or at three clubs. Second, it makes it easy to find a 4-4 major suit fit after a notrump opening.

The two-club response to an opening notrump is artificial and forcing. It shows at least eight high-card points and promises a second bid. It also shows at least four cards in one major suit.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

North has a minimum Stayman response and rebids two notrump over South's two spades. South has a maximum 18-point notrump. Since he knows that North holds four hearts (remember you don't respond Stayman unless you have at least four cards in one major) South jumps to the heart game.

There is nothing to the play. South wins the second trick with his king of diamonds, draws trumps, knocks out the ace of clubs and makes five odd.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

CRYPTOQUOTES

H A J B G W B Y D R Y P H A R Q V R - S Q R W T T W V B, W C C T X C C W D T T W E I G J H A Y X H. — E W Q L W Q R H P X C C R Q

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: TAKE CARE OF THE CHILDREN OF THE POOR, FOR FROM THEM WILL KNOWLEDGE ARISE. — TALMUD

Griffith cocktail party Wednesday

A cocktail party-reception for William Griffith of Arlington Heights, Republican candidate for the Metropolitan Sanitary District Board of Commissioners will be Wednesday.

The reception, from 5 to 7:30 p.m., will be at the Lancer Steak House restaurant in Palatine. Tickets are $10.

Sorensen appearance

Campaign appearances and meetings scheduled for the next week include one in Glencoe Friday on behalf of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter by Theodore Sorensen, former special counsel to President John F. Kennedy.

Sorensen will appear at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Peggy and Bernard Gordon, 1030 Forest Ave., Glencoe. The meeting is public.

The Young Republican Organization of Cook County will honor Dave O'Neal, Republican lieutenant governor candidate as its man of the year from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday.

Also being honored at the reception are civic organizer Bonnie Swearingen as woman of the year, State's Atty. Bernard Carey, Cook County Republican Chairwoman and Elk Grove Township committeewoman, Sharon Sharp, New Trier Township committeeman Dave Brown, 30th Ward Committeeman Herb Smith, and 43rd Ward Committeeman Ken Padgham.

IVI makes endorsements

Endorsement of three Northwest suburban candidates by the Independent Voters of Illinois was announced recently.

U. S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, was endorsed by the IVI for reelection based on what the IVI called a "truly excellent" record on economic, foreign, consumer and environmental issues.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, was endorsed as an "honest and effective legislator" for reelection from the 3rd Legislative District.

The IVI also endorsed Democrat Michael Smith for election to the Illinois Senate from the 3rd District. Smith, from Elk Grove Village, "will bring honesty and hard work to the State Senate," the IVI stated. Smith is running against State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Political briefs

Candidates back changes

As the campaign for the Nov. 2 election enters its last week, candidates continue to make proposals for changes in government and charges against their opponents.

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has called for a change in the priorities for the Illinois Dept. of Conservation so new recreational facilities will be developed close to the Chicago metropolitan area.

Regner said, "We have a massive amount of park land in deep Southern Illinois" but said few persons can get to those parks because they are so far from the Chicago area.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, recently called for adoption of a constitutional amendment to reduce from three to one the number of members elected to the Illinois House from each district.

Graham said the reform, defeated in the 1970 referendum on the new Illinois Constitution, would increase the efficiency of the lawmaking process.

Roger A. Keats, Republican candidate for the Illinois House from the 1st Legislative District, said recently he is independent of labor union support, unlike the two Democrats running in that district.

Keats, of Wilmette, is running for the House along with State Rep. John Porter, R-Evanston, State Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, and Democrat Joseph Rossberger of Northfield.

Charge-seasoned politics

Charges, countercharges and proposals for changes in government continue to mark the political season.

State Rep. Ted Leverenz, D-Maywood, is asking for increased police protection for his office and staff following what he alleges was a politically motivated break-in of his office.

"I refuse to be intimidated by these cheap tactics," Leverenz said. He said the break-in, in which several campaign files, a calculator, camera and binoculars were stolen, was followed by an incident outside his headquarters involving himself and someone taking pictures of the headquarters while driving a municipal car from the village of Schiller Park. Republican State Rep. Edward Bluthardt is mayor of Schiller Park.

Republican Roger Stanley of Streamwood, candidate for the Illinois House from the 2nd Legislative District, said he will work to restore fiscal responsibility in state government if elected.

Stanley said he will introduce legislation requiring disclosure of the cost of each spending proposal to the average taxpayer.

"Instead of hearing that a particular program will cost $100 million, the average taxpayer will know exactly what the program will take from his pocket," he said.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, has called for a study into alternative ways of financing state universities.

Graham said it appears to cost the Illinois state university system more to educate each student than it does many private schools. He said the state should set up an impartial group to determine whether that is true and said shifting state aid to the students, through increased scholarships, rather than giving it directly to the schools, may be a way to encourage increased efficiency.

3 candidates endorsed

Several local congressional and legislative candidates have collected endorsements and awards recently.

U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-10th, was honored as the taxpayer's friend" by Taxation with Representation, a public interest taxpayers' lobby.

Mikva's opponent, former Republican U. S. Rep. Samuel Young, has been endorsed by the Legislative Interest Committee of Illinois Dentists, an affiliate of the American Dental Assn.

U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has been endorsed for reelection by the Americans for Constitutional Action, a nonpartisan conservative organization.

Illinois Sen. Karl Berning, R-Deerfield, has been awarded the 1976 legislative award by the Urban Counties Council of Illinois. The council represents the county boards of 23 Illinois counties.

U.S., state nominees aided

A number of local Republicans and Democrats are working for state and national candidates.

A number of Palatine Township officials have campaign positions in Republican campaigns.

Township Supervisor Howard Olsen is running the President Ford committee effort in the township. Donald Payton is coordinating efforts for Comptroller George Lindberg and Atty. Gen. William Scott. Lee Dodgion is working on behalf of State Sen. William Harris, the GOP candidate for secretary of state. Don Bellum is working for Republican candidates in Cook County.

Palatine Village Trustee Richard Fonte is coordinating a 22-member committee for Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson.

Morrissey to keep post

Schaumburg Township Democratic Committeeman John Morrissey has been reappointed by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, the chairman of the Cook County Democratic organization, as chairman of the 3rd Legislative District Democratic Committee.

Elk Grove Township Democratic committeeman William Rose was reappointed as secretary of the same group.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, has named Donald F. Morton as her campaign finance chairman.

Former Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods is her campaign chairman.

Rumsfeld talks at Veterans' Day ceremony

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Defense Sec. Donald Rumsfeld laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier Monday and honored the nation's 30 million former servicemen during Veterans' Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery.

Rumsfeld substituted for the campaigning President Ford at the wreath-laying ceremony. Then, he addressed a small crowd, which braved the rain along with military and government officials and representatives of veterans' groups.

America's veterans "have experienced the sense of fulfillment that comes from serving this country and living up to its ideals," Rumsfeld said. "America's veterans have also experienced the worth of serving more than one's self — of serving one's people."

The defense secretary said veterans appreciate the value of peace, because they have experienced the ravages of war and destruction and know that "only through strength can the free world deter aggression."

Noting that about 1.3 million veterans in the country were wounded in wartime, Rumsfeld said they know "keeping America free, strong and at peace is worth the cost."

SUBSTITUTING FOR the campaigning President Ford, Sec. of Defense Donald Rumsfeld places a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery Monday in observance of Veterans Day. Many states, however, will celebrate the day on the traditional Nov. 11 date.

People's Daily reports:

Madame Mao tried power grab

HONG KONG (UPI) — Mao Tse-tung's widow and her radical associates "tried by hook or by crook" to undermine China's armed forces in an abortive attempt to seize power, the Communist Party newspaper People's Daily said Monday.

People's Daily published a series of articles accusing Madame Mao, Wang Hung-wen, Chang Chun-chao and Yao Wen-yuan of employing "the most sordid double-faced tactics" in committing "every conceivable crime."

The authors pledged support to new party Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and said the purge of the four from the party was "wise and absolutely correct."

ONE ARTICLE signed by every member of the air force headquarters said the "'gang of four,' in an attempt to seize top party and state leadership, tried by hook or by crook to interfere with and undermine our work of army building."

Another story said the four "tried to throw the army into disorder."

The articles spoke of the "elimination of the four evils" and "eliminating a bane" for the party and the people, but gave no clear indication of the radicals' fate.

PEOPLE'S DAILY also gave no hint of the new leadership lineup, which analysts had expected would be revealed at a million-strong rally Sunday in Peking that acclaimed Hua's appointment as Mao's successor.

Attending were all but one ill and aged member of the party political bureau — depleted by purges and deaths from 26 to 16 — but no one was identified as a politiburo member by official Chinese media.

Peking Radio and the New China News Agency said 34 leaders attended the rally, but gave no ranking. Significant, however, was the large number of military men on the rostrum with Hua, who wore a military uniform.

Hua Monday began receiving congratulatory messages from abroad, including notes from Vietnam, North Korea, Romania, Pakistan and Cambodia. Of these, only the Cambodians mentioned the radical purge, saying they "warmly acclaim the victory of smashing the counter-revolutionary 'gang of four.'"

3 more newspapers endorse Ford

by United Press International

The San Francisco Chronicle Monday endorsed President Ford, saying he has returned "honesty and decency" to the White House, while the New York Post came out for Jimmy Carter and said New York's "battle for life" hinges on the outcome.

The Chronicle, in an editorial, said Ford "has fully earned and deserves election to the presidency, to which, undeniably, he has restored honesty and decency."

The New York Post described Ford as a man "stubbornly unresponsive to cries of human distress — not only from the unemployed and their families but from small businessmen, consumers and many other victims of his record of government-by-veto in a time of stagflation."

The Madison, Wis., Capital Times endorsed Carter as the "only . . . viable alternative" to Ford, who it said "has never been right on the issues during his long career of public service."

However, the Madison, Wis., State Journal, backing the GOP ticket, said, "There is much room for improvement in the federal government, but on the major issues, the economy and world peace, Ford has an established record."

Another California paper, the San Jose Mercury, endorsed Ford, saying "Mr. Ford has demonstrated the compassion, the political astuteness, the firmness and the determined leadership the nation will require from the occupant of the White House in the coming four years."

Keeping an eye on the competition is Rolling Meadows' Connie Wilson.

Quiet contemplation — and exhaustion.

MSL girls splash through league test

Filled with high hopes and great expectations, a few hundred high school girls lined the decks of Buffalo Grove's swimming pool over the weekend during the third-annual Mid-Suburban League girls swimming meet.

Some screamed with excitement or encouragement, others cried in victory — or defeat. But most reveled in the thrill of competition.

Some five hours after the meet began, it was finally over and the competitors headed for home, some as winners, others to prepare for another day.

Bears hurt by Cowboys' 'basic sets'

by ED SAINSBURY

The Chicago Bears lost to the Dallas Cowboys, 31-21, their third straight defeat, because "we didn't take care of their basic sets," Coach Jack Pardee said Monday.

"We did a great job on their tricks and gadgets," he added. "But they gained about 250 yards up the middle. It takes maturity to handle that and take care of the basic stuff."

Pardee said he believed the Bears could win when they trailed 24-21 in the third period because "the way the defense was playing, I knew we could control their offense. But you've got to have patience and chip away. We took advantage of every break offensively."

PARDEE BELIEVED it was only the second game the Bears "lost," since both Atlanta and Dallas outplayed them. "We very easily could be 5-2 or 6-1," he said. "Atlanta and Dallas beat us. We could have beaten Minnesota and Los Angeles. Atlanta and Dallas deserved to win."

One of the major objectives of the Bears this week, he said, will be to try to find out why the team starts late. "We've got to get going," he said. "I've got to try to figure out why we are starting so slow. You can't spot Minnesota 17 points and Los Angeles and Dallas 10 and win.

"That's one of our deficiencies, and I don't know why. You can't spot good teams 10 or 17 points."

Pardee, while impressed with Dallas, declared the Cowboys still had the faults of a "young team."

"WITH ALL that shifting they do," he said. "You're still going to have bad snaps and mistakes. They do that every week. Their backs didn't fumble, and I thought when we were behind 24-21 that we'd get a couple of turnovers which could put us back in the ball game.

"Their shotgun is not sound. They don't block people. (Danny) White fumbled once and Mike Hartenstine didn't bite on one of their plays and he got an interception. I don't think you can get by on pure deception 20 or 25 plays a game. But Dallas is a young team and has trouble making the adjustments. I think maybe we get distracted more than others."

Pardee complimented both of his corner backs, Virgil Livers and Alan Ellis, for covering Dallas' wide receivers man to man. "If they don't do that," he said, "We're in trouble."

Livers also had a 51-yard punt return, longest of the year against the Cowboys, to set up a Bears' touchdown, and he said that his teammates were yelling "go, go" when he fielded the ball and began running.

"THEY TELL me 'go, go' or 'stay, stay'," he said, "and this time they were yelling go, so I took the ball." The return came after Livers had been knocked out by a hit while he was playing defense, but he said he suffered no ill effects.

"I felt I was going to break it," Livers said. "But I forgot about the punter. He had the angle on me, and I couldn't get around him."

The loss gave the Bears a 3-4 season record with Minnesota coming up next Sunday. The Bears lost the first game with the Vikings 20-19 when they missed two extra points plus a field goal.

Arlington plans legion banquet

The Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team that finished second in the nation will be honored at a special recognition banquet on Saturday evening, Nov. 27 at the Itasca Country Club.

The special program will include dinner and dancing and will feature players from the 1976 and 1965 Arlington teams, both national finalists. In addition, there will be several special guests.

Tickets are $11 each for the dinner, program, and dancing, and they may be purchased by contacting Lloyd Meyer at 255-6481 after 5 p.m.

Fremd blanks Prospect to claim soccer title

Forest View's soccer team ran their win streak to 10 in a row Monday but failed to capture conference honors as Fremd rolled over Prospect, 4-0, to annex the crown.

The Falcons eased past Elk Grove, 4-2, finishing up with an 8-1 loop mark and a 12-1-1 slate overall. Their only loss was in their first match of the season . . . to the Vikings.

Steve Norys slammed home a pair of long shots to pace the Vikes in their circuit finale. He made good on two 25-30 yarders while Rick Garcia and Jerry Norys chipped in a goal apiece in helping Fremd finish out with an 8-0-1 Mid-Suburban record.

The Falcons cemented their triumph on a goal by Wolfgang Klein with only a minute left in the contest. They had opened a 1-0 lead in the first half on Tom Sroka's score and opened a 3-0 bulge in the third period when Mike Goszezycki and Tom Stiff powered in goals.

The Grenadiers rallied on a pair of Dan Boutellier goals, one of them a penalty shot.

Busiest men on the fields Monday were Gren goalie Ron Sandera and Knight backstop Norb Raddatz with 25 and 28 saves respectively. Conversely Eric Hartman only had to turn away five shots in the Fremd nets to preserve his shutout.

Forest View coach Al Beard took an optimistic stand, even though his Falcons had just yielded the conference title to Fremd. "It's a brand new season now and we'll have momentum with this winning streak we're on. Fremd at the same time is a fine champion representative for our conference going into the state tournament."

In other soccer action over the weekend Rolling Meadows nipped St. Viator 3-2 to even up their overall record at 6-6.

Ted Theofanous accounted for all three Mustang goals, twice on corner kicks with Marco Pompeu getting assists and once on a penalty kick.

Lion goals were by Tony Scolpino and Kevin Hickey with an assist from Greg Sells.

Meadows goalie Mike Zimmerman was only called upon to make four saves while his team was registering their fourth win in a row.

Lake County's golfers continue mastery over Harper in Classic

Harper's golfing nemesis — Lake County — did it to the Hawks again, beating them out of the championship trophy at the DuPage Classic meet.

The DuPage gathering is the final tuneup before the state showdown to determine a national qualifier. Lake County also edged Harper in their own invitational tourney two weeks ago.

Mike Fitton carded a 78 for third place medalist honors and Jim Arden shot 79 to place fifth on the individual list as Harper finished with a 321, seven off Lake County's winning pace.

Rounding out Hawk scoring were Dave Nelson and Rick Grossi with 82s. Steve Spielman finished at 87. Notching a 79 was Lake County's Ed Stumpf, formerly from Hersey.

Joliet finished third in the Village Links-hosted gathering at 328. Triton placed 4th at 334 followed by Oakton (336), DuPage (337), Elgin (338), Illinois Valley (341), Kishwaukee (355), Waubonsee (358), Highland (364) and Morton (368).

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS product Andy Michuda, a 6-2, 230-pound senior tackle for the University of Wisconsin, has been named the United Press International Defensive Player of the Week. Michuda, who graduated from St. Viator High School in 1973, won the honor for his play in the UW-Northwestern game Saturday, which Wisconsin won.

Winless N. Y. Giants axe Arnsparger

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. — The New York Giants, the only winless established team in the National Football League this year, Monday fired Head Coach Bill Arnsparger one day after his club's most dismal performance of a thus far bleak season and replaced him with the assistant John McVay.

The ax fell on an off-day for the Giants, following their 27-0 loss to the Pittsburgh Steelers in which they mustered just 151 yards in being shutout for the first time this season. It was the seventh straight loss for the club.

McVay had coached the Memphis Southmen during their 1½-year stand in the World Football League. He guided the Southmen to the best record in the league in their first season, 17-3, and directed them to an 8-4 mark before the WFL folded last October.

Redskins slip by Cardinals, 20-10

WASHINGTON — The Washington Redskins converted three of eight fumble recoveries into a touchdown and two field goals and Eddie Brown returned a punt 71 yards for a game-breaking score Monday night to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 20-10 in the mud and rain.

The nationally-televised contest, which also featured two Washington interceptions, saw the Redskins take a first-period lead on Mark Moseley's 34 and 33-yard field goals, fall behind 10-6 going into the fourth quarter, then rally for the win on Mike Thomas' seven-yard touchdown sweep and Brown's electrifying run.

The victory evened the records of both NFC Easten Division rivals at 5-2, one game behind the division-leading Dallas Cowboys.

Back-to-back fumble recoveries by Brad Dusek and Ted Ritsch set up the first period Moseley field goals but Jim Hart put the Cardinals ahead at halftime with a 65-yard touchdown march which paid off when he threw a mud-slick eight-yard touchdown pass to J. V. Cain.

Late in the third period, Hart again took St. Louis deep into Redskin territory to set up Jim Bakken's 32-yard field goal on the first play of the final period for a 10-6 Cardinals' lead.

Moses Malone moves on – again

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets Monday traded their first round draft picks for the next two years to the Buffalo Braves for 6-11 center Moses Malone, reuniting him with his first pro coach — Tom Nissalke.

Nissalke, the coach with the Utah Stars in 1974-75, helped Malone with his highly-publicized jump from Petersburg, Va., high school to pro ball.

A BUFFALO spokesman said the Rockets paid $100,000 besides the two draft choices for Malone, but Rockets' General Manager Ray Patterson refused to confirm the figure.

Buffalo, which had acquired Malone from the Portland Trail Blazers one week ago, only played him six minutes in the first two games.

Houston is Malone's fifth pro basketball home in two seasons. After the Utah Stars of the old ABA folded early in Malone's second season (1975-76), he went to St. Louis. And when the ABA merged into the NBA, Portland selected him in the August dispersal draft.

Widow of slugger Babe Ruth dies

NEW YORK — Mrs. Babe Ruth, the widow of the late New York Yankee home run king, died Monday. She was 76.

Mrs. Ruth died of cancer in her New York City apartment, her daughter, Mrs. Brent Stevens, said.

"She didn't want to go to a hospital," said Mrs. Stevens. "She wanted to die at home."

A MODEL AND chorus girl, Mrs. Ruth was introduced to the Yankee slugger by actor James Barton. After a long courtship, they were married in 1929, according to Allan Schneider, a family friend. It was the second marriage for both.

UPI names six Reds to Star team

NEW YORK — Second baseman Joe Morgan was a unanimous choice and five other members of the world champion Cincinnati Reds were selected Monday on the 1976 UPI National League 1976 All-Star team.

Other Reds voted to the team along with Morgan were shortstop Dave Concepcion, third baseman Pete Rose, outfielders George Foster and Ken Griffey and relief pitcher Rawly Eastwick.

Rounding out the team were catcher Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, first baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers, outfielder Garry Maddox of the Phillies and pitchers Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres and Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets.

THE TEAM WAS selected by a panel of 27 UPI baseball correspondents from all over the country.

The closest elections involved Rose, Boone and Eastwick. Rose beat out two-time NL batting champion Bill Madlock of the Cubs 11-0, Boone edged Johnny Bench of the Reds 11-8, and Eastwick won over Butch Metzger of the Houston Astros 13-9.

Wombats 12, Rejects 6

The Licht Paint-Power Motors Wombats advanced their record to 4-1 Wednesday night with a 12-6 drubbing of the third place Rejects.

Wombat quarterback Brian Reed used a methodical short passing game, clocking on five to 10 yard precision tosses, and capped the Wombats' first possession with a 10-yard scoring pitch to Jeff "Vaseline" Smith.

The Rejects came back immediately to tie the score at 6-6 with a 20-yard flip to John Champion, who stood all alone in the end zone due to a defensive gaffe by the usually tight Wombat secondary.

The Wombats scored on the last play of the first half when, on a broken play, halfback Mark "Pear" Hollister double passed to end Al "Sleeper" Ernst for a 40-yard touchdown.

Wombat leading scorer Steve Loehndorf and Reject halfback Joe Nacreous were lost to their respective teams early in the third quarter when they were detected by an official exchanging blows about the head after the whistle.

The Wombats look forward next week to meeting the unbeaten Rootee Kazooter in a battle for the throne room of the Red Division.

Menely ponders future

'Teaching is what I do'

by ART MUGALIAN

Ron Menely sits at home now, without a job or a paycheck, and he remembers how it used to be.

A week ago, Menely was a teacher at Fremd High School and the coach of the state's No. 1 prep cross-country team, the Vikings. A lot of people, Menely included, had said that the Vikings were a good bet to defeat preseason favorite Deerfield for the state title.

It's no longer Menely's business to speculate on Fremd's chances for the rest of this season — or any other season, for that matter. Not since last Tuesday when the Fremd administration asked for his resignation.

"I TRIED TO clean out my den the other day," said Menely, who had put in 11 long and successful years at Fremd until his sudden departure. "But I couldn't stay in there very long. It was a disaster — all those state trophies and everything to remind me."

Menely still won't talk openly about the reason for his forced resignation other than to say that "the administration felt I made a mistake." He feels that something could have been worked out.

"The administration said they wanted to handle it in a professional manner, which is okay," Menely said. "I just don't think they showed any compassion."

SO NOW MENELY is looking for a job. Though he says his family is in no danger of starving in the near future, the ex-coach is anxious to get back to work somewhere.

"I'd like to stay in Illinois," said Menely. "I'd like to stay in this area if I could and I want to stay in high-school teaching.

"I just feel like I should be helping out somewhere," he added. "Teaching is what do. I want to help people."

Menely was a physical education and driver training teacher at Fremd. In addition to his job as cross-country coach, he was also an assistant on the track team specializing in pole vault and sprint relays.

"I feel my credentials as a track coach are pretty good," he said, referring to a long list of Fremd state qualifiers in his events. "I know that good pole vault coaches are few and far between."

BUT CROSS-COUNTRY is his life and Menely doesn't want to give it up. He had said that he wouldn't be attending the conference meet, but force of habit or something led him to Ivy Hill Saturday.

Menely watched his former team win the Mid-Suburban League title. He watched from a distance.

"I was 'way off at one end of the course," said Menely. "Hardly anybody knew I was there. I didn't want the kids to see me, but I looked up and there they were — warming up just about five feet away.

"Later, every time I looked up, they were looking over at me," Menely continued. "They just kept looking at me."

MENELY STILL sometimes refers to the Fremd team as "we." He can't stop himself. For 11 years he was a Viking, leading them to a state title in 1969 and five straight MSL championships.

"One of my runners called me up and told me they hadn't lost a coach — they'd lost a team member," said Menely.

"I told him that no man on the team is indispensable. And no coach is."

Dribble here, dribble there

The term "dribble" is one of the most widely used pieces of sport terminology.

In four separate sports, basketball, hockey, soccer and water polo, "dribble" is used to describe a segment of the sport.

Not surprisingly, all four refer to moving the ball or puck, in some manner, around the playing area.

Grade school cage clinic at St. Viator

A free clinic for area grade school basketball coaches will be staged Saturday, Nov. 6, at St. Viator High School from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Featured speakers at the clinic will include Glenn Wittenberg of Proviso East High School, who coached his Maywood School to the 1976 state basketball title. Wittenberg will speak on "special plays and zone offenses."

Mike Flaherty of Mendel Catholic High School in Chicago will speak on "pressure defense," while Harper College coach Roger Bechtold will talk on "building the man-to-man defense."

Also scheduled to pseak is Vic Rose, St. Emily Grade School coach and the dean of Northwest suburban junior high basketball coaches. Rose will speak on "building a junior high basketball program."

Following the sessions, a question and answer period along with free beer will be offered. Free coffee and rolls will open the session with registration starting at 8:30 a.m.

Goal largest in soccer

Soccer's relative low point production, compared to hockey, basketball, lacrosse and other sports that require the scoring of goals, can not be blamed on the size of the goal.

Compared to other sports, soccer's goal is much larger, measuring eight yards wide and eight feet high.

A hockey goal is six feet wide and four feet high while a lacrosse goal is as wide as hockey's but two feet taller.

Is IRA for you?

If you are now saving for retirement, or if you have been thinking about starting a plan for yourself, you should find out right now about the advantage of a tax deferred plan under the Pension Reform Act.

Called the Individual Retirement Account, it permits you to set aside tax deferred dollars for retirement. Investment earnings on your dollars are also tax deferred until you stop working. As an employee or self-employed individual, not covered under a qualified plan at your work or business, you could be eligible for the full benefits of an Individual Retirement Account.

If you are one of the 40,000,000 people in the U.S. that qualify for this plan, it could pay you to call a Nationwide agent today and find out how you can have "Good Living" when you stop working.

Stevenson wins; Barnett sets mark

Stevenson is only two games away from matching its all-time varsity record, but one of the Patriots has already passed up an individual mark.

The Patriots held on to win their fifth game against two losses at Antioch Saturday, 22-14. In the non-divisional contest, defensive back Doug Barnett set a school record with his eighth and ninth pass interceptions of the year.

Barnett, a senior, also had six tackles while smashing the school mark in this its 12th year of playing football.

AFTER A scoreless first quarter in which the Patriots "did not play well," according to head coach Tom Baumann, Stevenson made its move.

Thanks to some timely passes by quarterback Ken Kriske, the Patriots marched to a pair of touchdowns. A four-yard run by Dave Poulton and Bill Gooch's extra point put the Pats in front to stay.

Andy Farrissey also scampered for a four-yard touchdown later in the quarter. His two-point conversion made it 15-0 at halftime.

Stevenson took a 22-0 lead in the third quarter on a 19-yard pass from Kriske to Doug Atkins. Gooch again booted the extra point.

ANTIOCH RALLIED in the final period on a 20-yard pass play for one score and set up another on a blocked punt which the Sequoits recovered on the Pats' two.

"In the fourth quarter we fell asleep," said Baumann. "It got pretty scary in the end, frankly."

Poulton, Stevenson's fullback, carried the ball 22 times for 93 yards. Farrissey had 14 carries for 69 yards.

Kriske hit on eight of 18 passes for 116 yards.

ON DEFENSE, Bill Steiner, a linebacker, led the team in tackles with 10.

The Pats will have another non-divisional game at home this Saturday against Grayslake, starting at 2 p.m.

On Nov. 6, they'll be at Wauconda in a key Northwest Suburban South Division game. Presently they are tied for first place with a 3-1 record along with Dundee and Lake Zurich.
